PLANTZ SAYS COLLEGE NEEDS NEW BUILDINGS $60,000,000 Is Taken From Pay Of Shop Workers

$19,000 CUT IN DEBT SINCE LAST MEETING

Salaries of Professors and Instructors Increased—Budget Totals $247,450

Lawrence college must have a new science and recitation building, a new women's dormitory, an extension on the men's dormitory and a new building for the conservatory of music Dr. Samuel Plantz declared in his annual report at the meeting of the trustees and the board of visitors Monday afternoon in Carnegie library. Dr. Plantz said that the science building, the girls' dormitory and the gymnasium are imperative needs. A committee to make plans for the improvement and extension of the college equipment was appointed in order that a report may be made on the property required by the college in its growth and the best way in which to meet the building needs.

BOOST SALARIES

The salaries of the professors and assistant professors of the college have been raised $250 a year and those of the instructors, $100 a year. The officers of the board of trustees were reelected and those trustees whose terms expire were reelected. Mrs. Joshua Hodgins of Marinette was elected to the board of trustees. The meeting on Monday was the largest in several years; 20 members of the board of trustees were present and 10 members of the board of visitors.

MAKE A PROFIT

During the past year the dormitories have paid four and one half percent on the investment, according to Dr. Plantz report. The income from these buildings has been approximately $35,000 while the expenses have been $30,000, leaving a profit of $5,000. The income from the Lawrence Conservatory of Music has been $47,000 while its expenses were $36,000, thus leaving a profit of $11,000. Dr. Plantz also told of the money which has been given to the college by bequest and through the quiet campaign which shows that $35,000 must still be collected in order to meet the condition of the General Board of Education and cover the expense of the campaign. The board of education has offered $200,000 to Lawrence if $400,000 can be raised by the college.

NEED NEW GYM

In his recommendation concerning the buildings, Dr. Plantz suggested that Science Hall be extended to the south and that the old chapel be converted into recitation rooms in case that a new building cannot be erected at once. This would relieve the congestion for a short time only. Dr. Plantz emphasized the need of a new gymnasium by showing that the present building is wholly inadequate. He also suggested that the new girls' dormitory be built to accommodate 125 girls and that the rooms be equipped with private bath and other conveniences which would warrant a higher rate of board in that hall.

AFTER FARMERS' MILK CONTRACTS

Chicago — A campaign to persuade the 15,000 farmers of the Chicago milk marketing district to sign a new contract with the Milk Producers cooperative marketing company which would pledge them to sell all their milk and cream through the company was launched here Tuesday at an open meeting attended by 500 producers, manufacturers and distributors from the area within 50 miles of Chicago.

RATE DROP CAUSES MORE LAKE SHIPPING

Cleveland, Ohio — With readjustment of rail rates followed by the establishing of vessel carrying charges on iron ore at 12 1/2 per cent below the 1921 rates great impetus has been given to freight traffic on the Great Lakes during the past few days, according to local vessel owners. Boats are flocking out at every port and such large numbers that indications point to a full fleet being in operation at an early period.

At every port the demand for seamen is more urgent than at any time since the end of the world war, vessel men say.

COURT DENIES NEW HEARING IN RODD CASE

Gov. Blaine Fails in Effort to Have Contempt Case Reopened in High Court

By Associated Press
Madison—The effort of Gov. J. J. Blaine to have a rehearing of the case of Hans Rodd, Oneida county sheriff, whose removal from office in April was held void by the Wisconsin Supreme Court, proved unsuccessful when Tuesday the tribunal denied the motion for argument, made by M. B. Olbrich, executive counsel.

Denial of the move to reopen litigation which grew out of the removal from office of Sheriff Rodd, for refusing to obey an executive pardon order freeing Peter Christ, Rhinelander strike leader, gives final settlement to the case.

Mr. Olbrich, in briefs submitted to the court contended that in denying the right of a governor to pardon in contempt of court cases involving civil contempt, it had accepted the judgment of the lower court without passing on the question whether criminal or civil contempt was at issue in the Rodd case.

The court in denying the motion of the governor's counsel gave no opinion. In their opinion deciding the case, the justices held that a Wisconsin governor cannot pardon for civil contempt of court and that a peace officer who refuses to obey a valid order of the executive, cannot be removed from office by him, merely because he obeyed the law and not the governor.

HARDING WILL SEE SHIPPING BILL THROUGH

President Demands Consideration of Ship Subsidy Measure by Congress Now

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright, 1922, by the Post. Pub. Co.
Washington — President Harding has come to a showdown with members of his party in congress. He means to keep congress in session until a ship subsidy bill is passed. Hopes of adjournment in August so as to give members an opportunity to participate in their own campaigns in September and October are rapidly vanishing. The president is in earnest in his insistence upon the passage of a bill creating a new American merchant marine and will make the fight of his career for it. If congress adjourns without action, a special session will probably be called at once.

Urged by his friends to assume active leadership of his party on the tax bill last year and then the tariff and the bonus, Mr. Harding has refused to take the reins. But he is up in arms on the ship subsidy measure. It is to his mind a pledge the party must keep. Just as Mr. Wilson in his first term regarded currency reform as paramount and kept congress in continuous session all summer until he obtained action so is Mr. Harding convinced that the major act of his administration is to provide a merchant marine.

PRESIDENT STANDS BY BILL

Mr. Harding is willing to stand or fall as party leader on the merchant marine issue. The nation is losing fifty million dollars a year in operating the ships inherited from the war and the vessels are steadily depreciating in value and no others are being built by private shipping companies to replace the war fleet. To drag on this way means in Mr. Harding's indignant absolute failure of the merchant marine. The passage of American industry and commerce of untold proportions.

The pending bill which will be reported to the house in ten days provides for direct and indirect aid of fifty million will be spent. The first year it will cost about twenty million dollars. The annual outlay will be gradually increased to about forty million by the end of the first year. The measure is expected to get this sum back through the sale of ships and through the profits from private operation.

Fears of partisan opposition are largely groundless. Democratic leaders in the senate have told their Republican colleagues within the last few weeks that the Democrats as a party would not oppose the passage of the measure. It will through individual members will of course express their views and vote against it. When the measure comes to a vote it is assured of passage in both houses and will have a substantial amount of Democratic support.

HEAD OF TRADE COUNCIL RESIGNS

Chicago—Peace in Chicago's strife-torn building trades situation was predicted Tuesday with reports that Fred Mader, indicted president of the Building Trades council, had agreed to resign and that all of the building trades unions would accept the Landis award.

These developments, it was said, cleared the way to unhampered completion of building projects amounting to $200,000,000.

Future policies of the building trades council, outlined at a meeting of Union Leaders Monday night, include the immediate election of a new president to succeed Mader, whose willingness to abdicate was expressed Monday night. Mader, however, had previously agreed with his bondsmen to relinquish leadership of council affairs along with "Big Tim" Murphy when the two were released from jail following their indictment in connection with recent bomb outrages and the slaying of two policemen.

RAID ON SHRINERS TRAIN IS DENIED BY OFFICIALS

Milwaukee—An alleged raid Saturday on the baggage and commissary cars of the special train carrying the members of the Ancient Arabic Order Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, to the Shriner's convention at San Francisco Tuesday developed into a mystery in federal circles and the state prohibition department when the dry agents issued a formal denial that any raid was staged by either of the prohibition forces.

The train which was carrying 300 members of the order and their wives left Milwaukee Sunday morning.

Lillian Russell, Famous Actress And Beauty, Dies

Illness Which Caused Death of Actress Was Due to Accident on Board Ship While She Was Returning From Europe.

By Associated Press
Pittsburg — Lillian Russell (Mrs. Alexander P. Moore) bright star of American comic opera for three decades and internationally known as a professional beauty, who died at 2:30 o'clock Tuesday morning, had been ill several weeks following a ship board accident while returning from Europe. Her death was unexpected, as her physicians two days ago announced she had passed the crisis and would recover.

Mrs. Moore, who was the wife of Alexander P. Moore, publisher of the Pittsburg Leader, later suffered a relapse and Monday afternoon was so ill that members of the family were summoned to the bed side.

ACCIDENT CAUSES ILLNESS

The accident which one of her physicians said was the primary cause of her illness and death, occurred when she was violently thrown on the ship during a storm. The effects of the injury were not immediately serious, and although she steadily failed in health after her arrival, even those most closely associated with her were not aware of the decline. Mrs. Moore's trip to Europe was undertaken at the request of Secretary of Labor Davis for the purpose of making an intensive study among prospective emigrants to the United States.

Mrs. Moore, who was very well known throughout the country for her interest in civil matters, was in great demand as a public speaker and only a short time prior to her death filled a number of such engagements. She was actively interested in civic affairs in this city and was a leader in women's movements.

In addition to her husband, there were present at her bedside during her last moments, her daughter, Mrs. Dorothy Cabot and her niece, Mrs. Mildred A. Martin. She is also survived by two sisters, Mrs. Suzanne W. Allen of New York and Mrs. Hattie L. Colburn of Schenectady, N. Y. The funeral probably will be held Thursday at Trinity Church with burial in this city.

OFFICERS TRY TO LOCATE SENDER OF BAGGAGE CAR BOMB

Incendiary Bomb Exploded in Baggage Car — Injured Baggage Man Severely

By Associated Press
Milwaukee—Satisfied that the explosion at the Union Station in a baggage car of train 33 of the Chicago Milwaukee and St. Paul road, Sunday, was the result of a plot to kill the receiver of the package in North Milwaukee, federal authorities redoubled their efforts Tuesday to trace the sender and learn the identity of the intended victim.

An examination of the remnants of the incendiary bomb and infernal machine, made in the office of David Evans, of the railway mail service here, removed all theories that the explosion and fire in the coach that injured Patrick H. Scannell, might have been an accident in the handling of the mail.

Shopmen Get Reduction of 7 Cents an Hour—Freight Car Men Cut 9 Cents

ORDER CUT OVER PROTEST
Boards Decision to Be Followed by Reduction for Clerks and Telegraphers

By Associated Press
Cincinnati—A strike vote of approximately 1,200,000 railway workers of the United States will be taken by the individual unions affected by railroad labor board wage reductions, recently ordered and pending, it was decided at a conference of Union leaders here Tuesday.

The vote in each organization will be returnable within 30 days after the board announces a wage cut for that class of employees, the vote of the shop crafts, whose reduction was ordered by the board Tuesday being returnable June 30.

The new wage reduction brought an estimated added saving of $59,663,347 annually to the railroads, following the heels of a $50,000,000 cut in the wages of maintenance of way laborers last week. The shop craft decision becomes effective July 1, the same date as last week's order.

The minority report of the labor members pointedly stated that the majority decision was made "with no consideration of human needs" and charged that it fails to carry out the function of the board to set a "just and reasonable" wage.

CHARGE PROPAGANDA

"The tendency of this decision is to vindicate the propaganda of the railroads and consequently condemn such statements as the employees have been able to bring to public attention," the minority opinion said. It was signed by A. O. Wharton, W. L. McMenimen and Albert Phillips, the three labor representatives.

Supervisory forces of the railway shops were not decreased. After due consideration, the decision said, it was felt that the duties and responsibilities of such forces warranted maintenance of the present rates.

The reduction for the mechanics averaged a little more than 8 per cent, all machinists, boiler makers, blacksmiths, sheet metal workers, electrical workers, carmen (except freight carmen), moulders and cord makers and the regular and helper apprentices receiving a cut of seven cents an hour. Freight carmen, commonly known as "car knockers" and the object of some of the heaviest assaults by the roads in their battle for lower wages, were cut 9 cents.

The larger cut was ordered for the "car knockers" because the board said it believed their work did not require the same skilled service as other branches of car men's work. Their heavier reduction for the freight carmen, came under especially severe criticism in the minority report, the labor members declaring there was no justification for discrimination in car work.

Car cleaners who now receive an average of $3.18 a day were cut five cents an hour or 40 cents a day. The mechanics, whose daily rate now averages from $6.11 for electrical workers to $6.28 for blacksmiths will lose 5 per cent a day bringing their daily wage to approximately $5.70.

NO EXPLANATION

The board's latest decision, which is to be followed shortly by reductions for railway clerks, telegraphers and all other classes of railway employees except train service men, was brief and offered no explanation of how the new rates were arrived at.

The decision, however, contained numerous tables prepared by the board's statistical department, designed to show that although wages were reduced, they had not been reduced more than the reduction in the cost of living and that the purchasing power of the present pay was higher than the purchasing power of the higher wages paid during the years since 1917.

It also said that the board believed that even with the ordered decrease, shop employees would be receiving a wage greater than the average paid for similar work in other industries.

In introducing Mr. Dilg, first speaker, Dr. Holmes said the occasion was a red letter day for Appleton and Outagamie-co., and he was indeed glad to see so many present especially after the heroic efforts of the president, W. The membership fee of the new organization was one dollar and at the close of the speaking slips of paper were passed among those present to be signed by those who wished to become members. Many of the ladies as well as practically all the men showed their interest in conservation by attaching their names.

Among those present from neighboring cities were:

Whitnall, public land commissioner, Milwaukee, followed by a general discussion of zoning and planning in Wisconsin cities.

BANQUET IN EVENING

Committees have completed arrangements for the banquet in Elk hall at 6 o'clock Wednesday evening. Music will be furnished by an orchestra during the dinner and former Mayor J. A. Hawes will act as master of ceremonies and will introduce President Bentley who will have charge of the business session which is to begin immediately after the dinner.

The program includes a talk on "Municipal Improvements in Villages and Small Cities," by H. M. Sperry, president of Shorewood, general discussion of village problems, address on "Municipal Publicity" by Robert Green, city editor of the Milwaukee Journal. This is the first time that the matter of publicity has been given official recognition by the league at its conventions.

A large part of the Thursday morning session in the chapel, beginning at 9 o'clock, is to be devoted to discussion of the home rule amendment bill pending in Wisconsin. A. R. Hatton, Cleveland, Ohio, municipal charter expert, is to be chief speaker. The program also includes discussion of a proper municipal bonding policy and the proposed federal amendment to abolish tax exemptions on public securities.

GROUP LUNCHEON

A new feature of the convention will be round table luncheons at noon for discussions of problems of particular importance to various groups of officials. City officials are to meet for luncheon in the Venetian room of the Sherman house; waterworks officers and city engineers at Hotel Appleton, and city clerks at Hotel Neenah.

Appleton's fire department will hold a fire run about 1:15 Thursday afternoon, immediately preceding the business session. At 2 o'clock there will be a joint meeting of the league with the Wisconsin Waterworks association which it is proposed to organize here and waterworks problems will be discussed. The principal speakers will be D. W. Mead, Madison; Leon A. Smith, Madison; and Arthur J. Hall, Appleton. At 4 o'clock the delegates will be taken to the Appleton filtration plant. Street cars will convey delegates from the chapel to the top of Jackson-st. hill on State-st. from where they will walk to the plant.

HOME ARTISTS ENTERTAIN

An entertainment by Appleton artists will be provided Thursday evening to which the public will be invited.

Friday morning Judge Edgar V. Werner of Shawano will deliver the opening address and this will be followed by a business meeting and general discussion. Round table luncheons will be held at noon and at 1:30 the final business session is to be held in the chapel.

Beginning at 2:30 o'clock there will be an automobile ride to Kimberly where the delegates will be taken through the big Kimberly-Clark Co. papermill. Special entertainment will be provided at the mill by a band and there probably will be a few short talks. Delegates probably will leave for their homes late Friday afternoon.

PLAN HOUSE PARTIES

Ladies will be entertained at house parties and at the theatres during their stay here. It is quite likely that a reception will be held for the visitors Thursday afternoon at the home of one of the officers of Appleton Women's club.

More emphasis has been placed this year than ever before on the peculiar problems of village officials. Considerable time will be devoted to discussion of village and small city affairs. Reservations received thus far indicate that a majority of the visitors will be from the smaller cities.

NO CRIME BRED IN BIG OUT OF DOORS, DR. BRADLEY AVERS

Noted Orator Makes Impassioned Plea to Save Woods and Streams for Children

An impassioned plea for God's out-of-doors as the heritage of the American youth was made at the sportsmen's roundup at Eagle hall Monday evening by Dr. Preston Bradley, internationally famed preacher, lecturer, author, sportsman and self-styled nature evangelist.

Dr. Bradley ran the whole gamut of eloquence as he played upon the emotions of his audience as upon harp strings, arousing them to laughter, tears and thrills at will.

Introduced by Dr. J. A. Holmes, toastmaster, as one of the most brilliant men in the American pulpit and a speaker who causes fishermen to forget high water, high taxes and the Volstead law, the Chicago orator launched a bitter attack against the system that keeps the youth of today pent up in the city and hardens its moral and spiritual consciousness.

The tragedy of city crimes he regarded as an indictment against the conditions that will not permit growing manhood and womanhood to partake of the beneficent influences of nature.

NO OUTDOOR CRIMINAL

"No man," he said, "was ever bred a criminal in the open. There is no hypocrisy in nature. There is no tree that is a hypocrite, no sun that is a liar, no stream that is untrue and dishonest. Vice cannot thrive in this environment. It is the bad folks who do not like the outdoors, because they cannot stand being alone with themselves. They hate it because they cannot bear their own souls."

The speaker said he has ceased banking on the educational institutions, churches and Sunday schools as the sole guardians of Young America's conscience. He made a strong appeal to the fathers to make their boys their pals and take them out often into the open where they may learn to sing with appreciation and sincerity the words, "I love thy rocks and rills, Thy woods and templed hill . . . My country, 'tis of thee."

BACK TO BOYHOOD

The listeners were then led back to the days of their own childhood as the speaker painted with a realistic touch the scenes of the old fishing stream, the "ol' swimmin' hole," and the haunt in the woods of his boyhood home in Michigan. The glistening stream, he remarked, having since become polluted by the wastes of a cement factory, is but an example of what commercialism and irreverent waste has done to hundreds of streams and forests throughout the country.

"Gone are those happy haunts that were bequeathed to you and to me and our children to put iron into our blood, to tan our faces. The barefoot boy will swim no longer in those waters."

Dr. Bradley next denounced the old-time practice of wasteful fishing and hunting as being in part responsible for the present dearth of fish and game. In stating the difference between a sport and a sportsman, he said that the first was "the hog" who with an elaborate tackle would rake the streams for fish, hang them all over himself, have his photograph taken and send it to a sporting magazine with the message, "I never lost a strike."

"The sportsman," he declared, "is the man who uses but one hook, a light pole and light tackle and who in fishing gives the fish a fighting chance to get away, loses a fish once in a while and then tells the truth after the fish is lost."

Dr. Bradley's closing plea that every man and woman present at the meeting become a member of the Isaac Walton league for the conservation of fish and game, answered perhaps to the letter, was proof of the success of his message.

HELP ENTERTAIN VISITORS, MAYOR URGES CITIZENS

Proclamation Calls on Appleton People to Maintain City's Reputation

Mayor Henry Reuter, in a proclamation issued Tuesday morning called on the people of Appleton to do all in their power to make enjoyable the visit of 500 delegates and visitors to the convention of the League of Wisconsin Municipalities which opens here Wednesday. He said the impression which these city officials take back to their home cities will determine in a large measure the standing of Appleton among the communities of the state. He also called upon the citizens to dress up the city to let the visitors know they are welcome.

His proclamation follows: Appleton will be host to the twenty-fourth annual convention of the League of Wisconsin Municipalities on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of this week. About 500 officers of almost every city and village in this state will be guests of Appleton while they are attending the sessions.

This convention affords the citizens of this city a splendid opportunity to show the hospitality for which it is noted. The delegates and visitors attending the convention are men of influence and standing in their communities. The impression which they take back to their home cities will determine, in a large measure, the standing of Appleton among the communities of Wisconsin.

Now therefore, I, Henry Reuter, Mayor of Appleton, respectfully urge all citizens to do all in their power to make the visit of these men and women enjoyable; to show a spirit of cooperation with Appleton city officials in entertaining them; to dress up the city so that the visitors will know they are welcome and to do everything possible for their comfort and convenience to the end that they will long remember this convention and the city in which it was held.

Signed
Henry Reuter
Mayor of Appleton

BEGIN PAVING ON MEDINA-ROD, SOON

Highway Commission Meets to Discuss Progress and Audit Books

The county-state road and bridge committee met at the courthouse Monday afternoon to audit books, allow accounts and review the work accomplished on county highways this spring.

On the road north of Seymour, known as county highway C, a 10 foot span bridge has been built about five miles north of Seymour. Several other bridges and culverts are under construction. Grading for the roadbed of the two mile extension to the concrete highway was begun Monday afternoon. Garvey-Weyenberg Construction company is in charge of the work.

Work on the Greenville-Stephensville-rod awarded to Simpson-Parker Construction company has not been started, but is expected to be underway in about three weeks. The contract calls for 16,000 square yards of concrete.

The federal-state project No. 269 on the Dale-Medina-rod, highway 18, contract for which was given to Greinke Bros. a week ago, probably will be begun within the next few days. Four and a half miles of concrete paving is to be undertaken. The first work will be that of filling in the hollow between the end of the first stretch of concrete and Medina village.

The gang maintenance work was begun several weeks ago. A crew is engaged in oiling the joints and crevices. Patrol work by the 26 patrol men in the county also is progressing satisfactorily except in a few cases. Several changes may be made in the very near future. A. G. Brusewitz, county highway commissioner, said.

Chain Letter Again Going Rounds Here

Another of the chain letters which appear in Appleton every now and then has been received by a business man who had too many more important duties than write nine letters, so broke the chain.

The letter came from Traverse City, Mich. and reads: "Good luck. Copy this and send to nine people whom you wish good luck. The chain was started by an American officer and should go around the world three times. Do not break the chain, for whoever does will have bad luck."

"Do it within 24 hours and count nine days and you will have some great fortune."

"Let's all go smiling through 1922."

LAND TOO VALUABLE TO BE USED FOR STUMPS

Outagamie-co. has but very little uncultivated land left. Yet there are few farmers who do not have an acre or two of land covered with stumps and stones. Last week brought several of them out on their fields to use the dynamite as well as the traditional stump puller on those obstinate landmarks that tested the mettle of the early settlers. The new ground being broken will be used generally for corn or potatoes. Arthur Haas, on Spencer-rod, was one of the farmers to break new ground last week.

FOX RIVER PAPER EMPLOYEE'S WIFE PRAISES TRUTONA

"Those Former Severe Pains In My Back Are Scarcely Noticeable Now," Mrs. Heinzl Gratefully Declares.

Lifelong Appleton Resident Also Found Famous Tonic To Be a "Wonderful Bowel Regulator."

"My opinion about the merit of Trutona, since taking this wonderful medicine, is that no one suffering from kidney troubles can possibly go far wrong by taking it," says Mrs. Charles Heinzl, wife of an employee of the Fox River Paper Company, and lifelong Appleton woman residing at 1075 Oklahoma avenue.

"For several years," she said, "my kidneys had failed to function properly. I suffered such pains across my back and my kidneys were very sluggish. Almost since I can remember, I had been constipated. But I've surely gained great relief thru use of Trutona and in only a short time, too. Why, the former severe pains in my back are scarcely noticeable at all now and Trutona has greatly aroused the action of my kidneys. I found this medicine to be a wonderful bowel regulator, too. In short, I feel lots better today and I'm sure that Trutona will bring others the same relief that it has in my case."

For weeks and weeks, Appleton people have been telling remarkable stories of how Trutona relieved them of stomach, liver, kidney, bowel and blood troubles, in many cases, after other medicines had failed. Unknown here a few months ago, today, hundreds of bottles of Trutona are being sold to local people which is surely undeniable proof that Trutona is an extraordinary medicine — DIFFERENT from any remedy ever introduced here before.

Trutona is sold and highly recommended in Appleton at SCHLINTZ BROS. COMPANY. adv.

ASK RINGLING MAN TO GIVE ADDRESS

Paul O. Nyhus, farm agent of the First National bank, was in Oshkosh Saturday in an effort to engage John M. Kelly, advertising manager for Ringling Brothers circus, for an address here at one of the dairymen's big summer picnics. Mr. Kelley gave a tentative promise that he would come in August but his dates were so numerous he could not commit himself as definitely as Mr. Nyhus wished.

Mr. Kelley was the principal speaker at the annual picnic of Winnebago-co. Farm Bureau at the fair grounds at Oshkosh, and told 1,500 farmers without mincing any words it was time they came to the front with an advertising campaign to induce greater use of dairy products. He is a clever orator who spices his talk with plenty of humor.

CORBETT TO SPEAK AT ANTIGO SECRETARY EVENT

Hugh G. Corbett, managing secretary of the chamber of commerce, will go to Antigo Wednesday to deliver an address before the annual meeting of the Wisconsin Association of commercial Secretaries on "Methods for Membership Development." Mr. Corbett will present each delegate with a complete set of instructions for conducting a membership campaign, after he finishes his talk.

John N. Vandervries, Chicago, western secretary of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, expects to reach the city Tuesday on his way to the gathering.

A STEEL BONANZA?

Samuel Untermyer and the New York Lockwood committee are engaged in cross-examining the financing of the latest steel merger. Is it another case of J. P. Morgan high jinks, they ask, or are the underwriters going to get only a reasonable amount? Is the combination legal, or is it in violation of the Sherman act?

When the United States steel combination was effected in 1901 a great hue and cry went up about water stock. One of the strongest proofs offered that overcapitalization had occurred was the fact that a seventh of the total stock involved went to the underwriters. They raised $62,500,000 in cash and got $12,500,000—a rather large proportion, considering that they undertook no risk, and that their expenses totaled only $3,000,000.

The constituents were themselves combinations before they came in, and in each of these preliminary combinations securities had been issued in part for organization services. Promoters and underwriting bankers, manufacturers receiving a price in excess of the value of their plants, the public which received a bonus of common stock with preferred, and stock-peddling engineers and appraisers are all said to have been acceptors of part of the "water."

At any rate it was a bonanza. It so happened that the shrewd and well-rewarded financiers who engineered the deal guessed absolutely right: the benefits of integration and large-production efficiency were so great that in time the excess was squeezed out and the capital actually represented valuation. Enough independent companies were left, and enough good sense ruled in the Gary councils, so that investigation failed to report the existence of monopoly.

Some one, however, pays for all this. If efficiency raises the valuation to the amount of a capitalization inflated by excessive stock gifts to promoters it would have done the same had the promoters been paid only a reasonable sum. The money that went to pay their bonus and dividends might have gone to decreases in the price of steel to the consumer. As the projected Republic-Midvale-Inland merger offers exactly the same sort of opportunities, and as the same Wall street group appears to be interested, the Lockwood investigation would seem to be entirely in the public interest.

THESE KNICKERS

Nationwide prominence has come to Traverse City, Mich., since announcement of its mayor's attitude on knickers. Only be unusual and fame will turn your way. Others have expressed the same anti-knicker sentiments as Mayor Swanton. But nobody else, at least in the knowledge of the news, has so far extended his objections into public action.

The knicker—except for brief eras such as that of 1880 when its earlier edition, the bloomer, made a much discussed appearance in New York—has generally been confined to the appareling of male youngsters and such of the oldsters as play golf or go fishing. Its present advent among the ladies is explained by them entirely on grounds of comfort and utility, and we think honestly and sensibly. It must take a ruminative mind to discover anything more "immoral"—Mayor Swanton's term—in this year's knickers than in last year's skirts.

If women had worn knickers from the start and suddenly decided, on the streets of Traverse City and in A. D. 1922, to change to brief and clinging gowns and sheer silk stockings, it is probable that Mayor Swanton would be protesting just as vehemently—and a great deal more justified from the point of view of fascination.

THE "BAD" BOOKS

Fifteen or twenty years ago the only attention paid to books young people read was in reference to quantity. If they would only read more, say, of George Eliot or Dickens or Thackeray—even more of Stevenson or Mark Twain, though their influence was considered doubtful by some good people—surely the youth of America would have a better foundation for character. There was some talk about shallow reading, some attempt to lead young minds away from the shoals and superficialities of Optic, Henty and Alger to drink in deeper waters, but aside from this and the sporadic drive against dime and nickel novels the character of books was seldom attacked.

"If only they would read more!" That was the cry.

Nowadays the movement is the other way. One Chicago preacher complains that twenty copies of "The Sheik" were found in a Virginia girls' school and that every youngster in the place, ages ranging from 12 to 18, had consumed the thing. "If only young people would read less of this realism." There is the new complaint. The disposition to reverence style and thinking has passed and reformers are crying that the better the style is the greater and more devastating will be the effect. One would think that "sensational fiction" and "sex realism" were new things. Of course they are not. Recently a New York publisher brought out a new edition of "Niels Lyhne," a temperamental introspective sex-interest novel written in 1880 by Jacobsen, a Danish realist. It ought to sell, for there is little to distinguish it from the most modern work of the modernists. "Sex appeal" in literature is much older than Boccaccio.

The demand for such works by American youth is chiefly the same demand for revelation, the same refusal to recognize conventions and standards and restrictions which is evident in the whole flapper, shifter, grownup youngster movement. War realism and war reaction touched the match to it, and the new "spirit of youth" which has conquered the older generation has kept it going and made it profitable for writers to go on turning out a "shocking" and half-baked, a sensually philosophical literature. Not truth but a time-obeying sensation is the cause served by this work, much as its frequently excellent writers may protest. If this were not a fact—if books did not serve the public taste instead of creating it—"Niels Lyhne" might have been a best seller in 1880, which it was not.

It will do no good to try to bring the young folks back to Browning, Tennyson and Wordsworth, as the Chicago dominion suggests. The "jazz" movement, already showing signs of decay, will have to burn itself out. It is worth while to note that even in all this hullabaloo about "bad literature" there are a hundred books brought out whose romance of realism is morally constructive to one whose only aim is a glorified revelation of smut.

88-Cent Man

A chemist analyzing the chemical composition of the human body computes its value as 88 cents. Fat for soapmaking, iron to make a nail, lime for whitewash, a speck of sulphur, a small quantity of sugar and infinitesimal quantities of rarer and more expressive chemicals might be recovered from the body of "the average man."

From time to time it is helpful to get this sort of an estimate. It checks an overplus of human egotism. But it doesn't tell more than a fraction of the story—even from the viewpoint of the chemist.

If the carbon of the man's bones were in the form of a diamond instead of the boneblack of the laboratory test tube its value would be multiplied a thousandfold. If the iron alone were made into delicately tempered watch springs instead of 88-cent valuation of the body.

And so it goes with other elements that make a man. It isn't the raw material valuation that counts. It is the refinements and combination that make man more valuable than the metal from which Mr. Bryan says he was derived.—NEW YORK EVENING WORLD.

Woman's Half Vote

Sweden is to vote wet or dry at a national referendum to be held in August. Hjalmar Branting, the Prime Minister, avowed some years ago, before his elevation to his present office, that his ideal is a dry Sweden. And now both chambers of the parliament, or Riksdag, have approved the referendum on prohibition.

An interesting circumstance in connection with the plan for holding the referendum is the fact that women's votes will be kept separate from the men's votes and will count only one-half. The women of Sweden are protesting vigorously against this division of the votes. The advocates of the division maintain that they do not want to see prohibition "carried against a perhaps fairly large majority of the male voters." The idea is that whatever the majority of the men want, that is what the country ought to have, hence each woman is classed as only half a person. Whether this divided-vote proposition obtains or not, it at least should be given credit as a contribution to the safety of nations.—NASHVILLE BANNER.

A MOVING PICTURE OF CVD

Before presenting this film let me clarify the situation for the uninitiated reader by giving a definition. CVD stands for cardio-vascular degeneration, the heart artery wearing out process which so frequently culminates in Bright's disease, slow heart muscle failure, arteriosclerosis (hardened arteries) or apoplexy (stroke or paralysis, cerebral hemorrhage) around middle life. Although this condition is on the increase, according to mortality statistics and insurance records, and now vies with tuberculosis, pneumonia and cancer for the championship position in the Death league, the medical books give only still pictures of it, taken after the wreck, as uninteresting and tiresome as the red stained films of fire scenes taken the next morning. I am going to show you as true a picture as I can possibly present of the heart artery wearing out process in the years before the wreck. A picture of CVD long before, the relatives are summoned to the bedside must necessarily be constructed out of fragmentary views, since it covers a period of years during which the hero of the piece has very insidiously progressed from his former excellent health to his present indifferent health. I have considerably deleted all close ups showing piles or stacks of empty bottles, disfiguring health resort literature, receipts for freak treatments, and the like, which the hero has discarded along the way.

It seems that in the universal dream of growing old and maybe dependent in some degree, everybody strives to "hide from himself his state and shun to know" how his own vital machinery is bearing up. It is natural enough to wish to escape the "cold gradations of decay," to keep peering along somehow until death breaks at the vital chain and the little story ends like the deacon's wonderful one horse shay. But it isn't good economy or good business to go that way, after all. You can't afford a new machine and you can't trade the old one in advantageously. It pays, therefore, to take some care of the old one, without being fussy about it, you understand.

After thirty it is an excellent habit to submit to an annual physical examination at the hands of a good physician. Such examination should rather measure how much health you have than determine whether you have any "organic" trouble. Let us indulge in an orgy of morbid imagination and suppose your annual examination forces upon your attention some such facts as these: You have taken on some pounds of superfluous weight; your vital capacity is several cubic inches less than it was a year ago; your heart action is excited for a longer period by moderate exertion than it was a year ago; your blood pressure is on the borderline or a trifle beyond what a coldly practical insurance company would consider healthy; now that you consent to think of it, your general capacity is not so good as it was, your endurance is appreciably less, your memory is less dependable, you find yourself a little more short of breath when you engage in any muscular exertion—well, it is a sad story and I hate to tell it, but it is high time to take care of your cardio-vascular system.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Everybody's TB
Some time ago in one of your talks you intimated that nearly everybody has tuberculosis of the lungs sooner or later. This doesn't seem reasonable to me. Was that a misprint? (R. O. S.)
Ans.—No, I said that most of us harbor some where in the body a focus of tuberculosis in a latent state. It is too extensive to go into here. I have a special letter on tuberculosis which will interest you, and I'll gladly send this special letter to any reader who asks for it and encloses a stamped envelope addressed to himself.

Too Dancing

I should like to know whether toe dancing spoils the feet. (G. T.)

Ans.—On the contrary.

That Early Bird
I notice that nearly every health authority advises at least eight hours of sleep each night. What would be your advice to one who is compelled to leave an open air bedroom at 4 a. m. regularly because he is awakened by the shrill crowing of a neighbor's rooster? (E. K.)

Ans.—One maximum silencer and a pair of gum shoes.

How to Find Out

How can one find out positively whether he has or has not syphilis? (J. N.)

Ans.—By consulting a physician.

Resume of American and Foreign Newspaper Opinion

THE DYER ANTI-LYNCHING BILL

The recent epidemic of mob violence against negroes has resulted in a general discussion of the subject and the relation thereto of the so-called Dyer anti-lynching bill which is tabled in the Senate Committee because of grave doubts regarding its constitutionality. The newspapers of all sections unite in condemning mob action and appeal to the law and order element in every community to stamp out the spirit of violence. But many express doubt of the wisdom of action by the Federal government believing that the states themselves can be depended on to end the outrages.

Although harm has come because of a popular conception that Federal laws are better enforced than state enactments, which has resulted in allegations that State Rights have been trampled, the Milwaukee SENTINEL feels convinced that it is "high time for some states to bring their law enforcement machinery up to the standard set by the Federal laws." Yet with that view carefully taken into consideration the Grand Rapids HERALD believes that "in spirit and purpose the Dyer law is sound. Persistent Southern lynchings are a blot on American civilization. This curse will never be controlled by the states themselves. Under the doctrine of 'implied powers' some way must be found—whether the Dyer law or some other—to make federal attack upon this curse constitutional and resultful." In view of the fact that there apparently was conclusive evidence that some, at least, of the negroes lynched were guilty the Manitowish HERALD NEWS says the incident appears "in what might be called its most favorable aspect," and then, recalling that the majority of the Southern lynchings have spoken against the states, insists "the Federal Government apparently cannot set free the negroes but it can and should see that they are protected in life and limb."

Sharp and sincere denunciation of the negroes is voiced by the Lynchburg NEWS in pointing out that "the cure of all evil resides with the authorities and the public opinion of the communities in which this order of lawlessness finds its excuse and it makes it very clear that 'because of a few recklessly, cruelly, lawlessly disposed groups of people, the entire South is unjustly advertised to be a land where lynching stalks abroad, as an unconquerable menace to the maintenance of law and order and to the peace of society.' While this is true some action must be taken to curb the evil in the opinion of the Boston TRANSCRIPT which insists if Congress has not power to act then a constitutional amendment should give this authority because 'the nation is on its conscience in this matter. It cannot live and be safe while nourishing in its breast such rampant and worsening savagery as the lynch law expresses.' But there is sincere doubt in the mind of the Rochester HERALD whether law of any sort will suffice. It is suggested that 'there is but one way to stop lynching and that is by the general education, by the cultivation of greater confidence in, and more universal reliance upon, the courts and in the processes of law.'"

The Southland is "unfortunately" belittled by circumstances and individuals that are directly antagonistic to her thought, her sentiment, her aspirations and her spirit," the Memphis COMMERCIAL APPEAL points out, in comparing mob violence to the actions in Washington of Senator Tom Watson and Representative Blanton, "the high ideal and lofty sentiments of a great section of this country" says.

However mob outrages are by no means confined to the South the Columbia RECORD quietly points out in suggesting that "in the south a bombing outrage is a rarity, and recalling the numerous recent cases in northern cities. In addition, while it is believed that the Dyer bill is unconstitutional, the Charleston Post reminds its readers that "these sections which fly by night and murder, or crimes committed ought to appreciate the significance of the movement which almost succeeded, to put this measure through and that while it has been largely political in its inspiration there is a widespread revolt against the lynching evil and it might find expression in some legislation which might even pass the scrutiny of the Supreme Court."

It is denied that the "mob must go" in the opinion of the Chattanooga TIMES, which suggests that "the call now is for courage and for organized opposition to any sort of interference with the authority of the state and a determined purpose to maintain the guarantees of religious and political liberty. If that is not done then the American experiment must fail."

While the possibility of passage of the Dyer bill has vanished, the Mobile POSTER contends that "there should be no apologies for lynching and all good citizens wish to see such manifestations of lawlessness suppressed." Endorsing this view the Columbus DISPATCH points out that constitutionality was claimed for the bill for 14 months.

The annual convention of the Federation of Labor opened at Harmonie hall with about 50 delegates present.

The senior class of Lawrence university dispensed with class day exercises because all the spare time of members was taken up with the Ariel.

FRENCH VS. SOVIET GOVERNMENT

Paris—Writing in L'OEUVRE a political correspondent says: "The government institutions of the Soviet republic are not as different as we might think from the institutions of our bourgeois republic."

"The duties of the people's commissaries, that by no means different from that of our ministers and the president of the college of the people's commissaries, Lenin, has exactly the same function as our Premier."

"As to the President of the Republic, who is sometimes familiarly called 'the executive' in France, he is called there the 'President of the Central Executive Committee.' His family name is Kallinina."

"His name is much less known than that of other Bolshevik leaders, and yet it is the name of the great master of the Soviet Republic, Lenin's hierarchic superior. Kallinina who is a kind of peasant, loves to mix with the crowds, with whom he is extremely popular. In spite of his high office, he has insisted on remaining near his little village, and he has no great joy that to return from time to time at the hay-making season, or to take care of his cows, his horses, and his eight sheep. Among all the Bolshevik leaders he is the only one who speaks nothing but Russian. He lives in a very simple house in Moscow, with a card on the door with the words 'Office of Comrad Kallinina on the first floor.'"

"This was the case that if the Soviet institutions resemble ours, their customs are nevertheless very different."

NEW MINERS' SAFETY DEVICE

London—"We are confident that our invention is going to prove a real advance in ensuring safety in mines," said Mr. Leo Williams, one of the inventors of the new instrument for gauging the fire-damp in mines, to a Westminster Gazette reporter.

The "Williams Methanometer" is a metal cylinder, 2½ inches in diameter and a little more than an inch in depth. It is attached to, and controlled by, the miner's ordinary electric lamp, and enables him to measure on the spot the exact amount of fire-damp without—as at present—having to convey air to the surface.

The air is pumped into a chamber, and forces along a gauged tube a colored liquid. When zero is reached on the gauge pumping is stopped. An electric spark is then passed through the air in the chamber, and the amount of fire-damp burnt—in other words the amount of fire-damp in the cubic space of the cylinder—is registered on the gauge by the fall of pressure on the colored liquid. The time occupied by this operation is at the most a minute.

Messrs. Williams have been experimenting since 1915. Hundreds of drawings have been made, as well as 27 models of the methanometer, each embodying some improvement.

Mr. Leo Williams told the Westminster Gazette that the methanometer is passed by the Home Office (its tests there are now nearly completed) and he and his father will probably start a company for renting the instrument to users.

STEEL RAILS THAT DO NOT JOIT

London—There is hope that the tramway track of the future will be continuous and that passengers will be spared the jolting and shaking which result from worn rail connections, the Daily Mail says. If joints can be dispensed with, except for crossings, it will be possible to travel from terminus to terminus over a track uniformly smooth and unbroken.

A device invented and patented by Mr. Harry Bolton, an alderman of Sheffield Corporation, for the improved welding of joints has already gained wide popularity. Sheffield is following it throughout the city service. Rotterdam and Lincoln are following Sheffield's example. Johannesburg, which has 82 miles of tramway track, compared with Sheffield's 78, proposes to follow suit, and negotiations are in hand with five other British corporations and with Calcutta.

Mr. Bolton's device dispenses completely with bolts and nuts, which under the old process are used to secure fish-plates to the joints. Fish-plate joints are now clamped into the side of the rail, and when the plates have been electrically welded to form a continuous line the clamps are removed. Sheffield already has unjointed tracks of one-third to half a mile long, over which the heaviest tramway-cars pass without the least shaking or jolting.

Mr. Bolton has no steelworks practice or metallurgical knowledge.

Don't buy a Palm Beach Suit that was made in a snow storm!

There are Palm Beach Suits that have been lying on some manufacturer's shelves for six months—and there are Palm Beach Suits that have just had the buttons sewed on them.

Since both kinds are going to be offered—in announcing ours we'll add this:

Our tropical suits were not ordered last Fall—they have not been laying in moth balls—they're fresh from a hot iron—not frozen in storage.

They're new in style—in make. They were not made last Fall—that's why you'll fall for them when you see them.

$16.50 to $18.50

Fakers Getting Busy

Blackmailers, quacks and charlatans who live by their wits are invading the psycho-analysis field. Word has gone forth that this is one of the easiest grafts since the gypsies invented palm-reading.

Legitimate psychoanalysts are stirring a campaign against the fakers. Getting evidence is unusually hard. Dr. A. A. Brill, who wrote the best American book on the psychology of the mind, points out that victims of blackmailers cannot make charges without revealing the secret which subjects them to blackmail.

If taking up psycho-analysis be careful with whom you deal.

SPORTS

The exit of athletic heroes is a possibility suggested by Carl L. Schrader, head of physical education in Massachusetts.

He thinks that in future schools the physical instructor will serve all instead of confining his efforts to a few. General athletics will be the aim, rather than victory.

"We have had the wrong objective in physical education up to the present, inasmuch as victory in our games was our only goal and defeat considered a disgrace."

Schrader's theory is sound. But attention will concentrate on victors as long as every one wants to be a victor. And that, apparently, will be forever.

DEATH

"I know absolutely how to live to be 100 years old, and I don't practice what I know."

That is the confession of Dr. Royal S. Copeland, health commissioner of New York.

His admission sums up nearly everything in life. All of us have wisdom, but we ignore it, as when we spend more than we know we can afford, or eat more than we know is good for us.

We seek mythical panaceas, knowing in our hearts that we already have.

Q. When did employers in this country first make a contract with organized labor? J. E.

A. Probably the first agreement of this kind was made in 1836 between newspaper publishers and the typographical unions in Chicago and Washington. Both of these cities claim the honor of being first.

Q. Please explain the method used by Brazil in handling coffee. B. C. P.

A. The Department of Agriculture says that in the Brazilian Coffee Valorization Scheme the coffee is purchased outright by the Brazilian Government, or at least by the state governments in the coffee producing region. Brazil not only directs the exportation of coffee, but exercises control over the number of coffee trees planted. Since Brazil is the largest coffee producing country, it has been able to exercise an almost complete control over the world's supply. To finance the valorization scheme, the Brazilian states have contracted large loans in foreign countries and in several instances have issued large quantities of paper money against the stocks of coffee.

CONCERT FITTING CLIMAX TO YEAR OF MUSIC EFFORT

Lawrence Choir, Assisted by Other Artists, Stars in Splendid Program

No more fitting climax to a year of wonderful musical achievement at the Lawrence Conservatory of Music nor no more enjoyable opening for the seventy-fifth jubilee celebration could have been planned than the commencement concert given at Lawrence Memorial chapel by Lawrence choir Monday evening. With each appearance, the choir has showed marked improvement in its ability to respond to the slightest wish of the director until the concert on Monday evening was presented with scarcely a place where the singers were weak.

Both gallery and main floor of the chapel were filled with guests of the graduating class and a large number of townspeople. When Dr. Samuel Plantz, president of the college, came on the platform to make an announcement, he was greeted with thunderous applause.

The program was opened with a Lawrence song, "Fair Lawrence" which was written by Winfield Alexander, the blind singer and student at the college. The audience and choir joined in the singing of the song which commemorates the passing of seventy-five years of history of Lawrence college. James Hamilton, tenor, Chicago, assisted the choir as soloist. He sang a varied program in three groups of which an aria from Tosca and another from Pagliacci were the best musical achievements, but a group of dainty songs and two clever little encores greatly pleased the audience.

QUARTET PLEASURES
The Pullinwider String Quartet also assisted the choir with a group which was played with musicianly appreciation and splendid technique. The group included the four movements of the "Quartet A Minor" by Schubert.

Two anthems in eight parts which are new in the choir repertoire stand out as having been among the best numbers on the program. The careful blending of the voices in most difficult sections. "The one was 'Psalm XLIII' by Mendelssohn and the other, 'The Hymn of Praise' by Tchaikovsky.

The lullaby from the "Bavarian Highlands" which has proved so much a favorite with the choir's audiences during the winter was again very well received. The children, also from the "Bavarian Highlands," is a new selection which is light and merry. The choir included "Listen to the Lambs" and "Hallelujah, Amen" in its program.

Miss Irma Sherman was the accompanist for the choir and Miss Gladys Yves Brainard accompanied Mr. Hamilton. Carl J. Waterman, dean of the Lawrence Conservatory, to whom credit is due for developing the ability of the choir, directed the choir numbers as usual.

CHURCH SOCIETIES

Mrs. Otto Wolter and Miss Elizabeth Walsh were elected delegates to the diocesan convention of the Mission Association of Catholic Women which will take place at St. Norbert's college on Aug. 2. A retreat for Catholic women lasting three days will follow the convention. Two donations of $50 each have made it possible for St. Mary branch 350 to adopt two Chinese seminary students with the intention of putting them through the course of study for the priesthood. The association set out to get enough money to educate one student for one year which costs $50 and when it had raised the money, two friends to the association donated enough for a year's education. This caused the association to resolve to procure enough money to send two students through the entire course.

"Better Friendships" was the topic at the meeting of the Christian Endeavor of the Presbyterian church on Sunday. Miss Florence Mainland led the discussion. The Rev. E. W. Wright gave a short talk.

The contest of attendance between the army and navy was finished on Sunday evening with the navy sailing ahead with flying colors. Philip Boyce was admiral of the navy, while Maurine Cahall was general of the army. The army will treat the navy at a marshmallow roast on Tuesday evening at Alicia park.

Service Drive Will Be Started By Legion Within Next 2 Weeks

Veterans Seek to Discover Every Former Service Man and His Needs in City—Americanization Work is to be Emphasized.

Launching the service drive for the city of Appleton will be possible within a week or ten days following preparations completed by Oney Johnston post of the American legion at its closing meeting of the summer session in Elk hall Monday evening. An organization was made up for each ward so a house-to-house canvass may be made.

The campaign will be carried out in a manner similar to that which was used for the remainder of the county this spring. The city will be combed so every former service man will be listed and his service record and needs made known through filling out of the questionnaire used in the national service drive. Men needing government aid or medical care thus will be discovered.

Ward organizations were made up quickly by splitting the meeting into ward groups. Each section elected its ward captain and the helpers were listed through a volunteer plan. The captains are to meet immediately and set the dates for the drive.

Ward captains are Joseph Marston, First ward, J. T. Whelan, Second ward; Edgar Schommer, Third ward; John E. Hantchell, Fourth ward; James H. Balliet, Fifth ward; Howard Van Ooyen, Sixth ward.

ELECT DELEGATES

Seven delegates and seven alternates were elected to attend the state convention of the American legion Aug. 23, 24 and 25 in Beloit. All 14 are to attend because the post appropriated $10 to pay the expenses of each man. All other members were urged by Luther G. Graef, post commander, to visit Beloit on those dates and share in what appears to be the biggest gathering of World war veterans ever held in the state.

The delegates are Mr. Graef, L. Hugo Keller, Joseph Marston, Jr., Charles C. Baker, John Hantchell, Thomas Morrissey and August Arnes; the alternates, Dr. W. J. Frawley, Frank H. Bellevue, A. A. Grizmacher, Arthur Bunks, A. M. Scheure, Edgar P. Schommer and Peter Goerl.

More stress will be placed on patriotic education through an Americanization committee which is to be appointed and made one of the standing committees of the legion. This group will arrange for programs in the schools, especially in commemoration of national holidays. A special committee is to be appointed to arrange a ceremonial program at the court house each time citizenship papers are granted to applicants for naturalization here. The plan is to make the new citizen realize that the granting of papers is a big event in his life. Small flags probably will be distributed.

Cocoon Oil Fine For Washing Hair

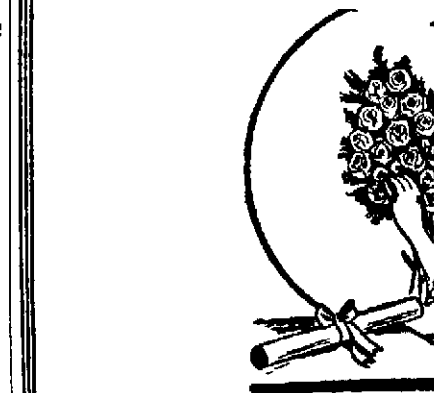

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Multisilf coconut oil shampoo (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply put two or three teaspoons of Multisilf in a cup or glass with a little warm water, then moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Multisilf coconut oil shampoo at any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Multisilf.

Daughter Graduates

GIRL NOW WELL AND STRONG

Daughter Took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as Mother Advised

Wauson, Ohio.—"My daughter always had backache and leg-ache at certain periods and could not be on her feet at those times. We read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound doing girls so much good so she began to take it. That is two years ago and she is a different girl since then, although she is still careful not to do heavy work—and so well and strong. We recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to all mothers with ailing daughters, and I give you permission to publish this letter as a testimonial."—Mrs. A. M. BURKHOLDER, Route No. 2, Box 1, Wauson, Ohio.

See This New Nationally-Priced Gulbransen at

The Player-Piano Sensation. of the Year!

A MONTH or so ago $365 couldn't buy a player-piano equal to the Community Model Gulbransen—anywhere in the United States. Today $365 buys it everywhere—in hundreds of cities from one end of the country to the other.

That's because the Gulbransen is Nationally-Priced—sold everywhere at the same prices.

If we said to you, "This $500 Player-Piano, Now $365," it would not mean anything. We might as well tell you it is a $600 player.

But we do say this: That we challenge comparison with any medium-priced player. That the National Price, the Gulbransen prestige, the 10-year guaranty and our own recommendation assure you of a square deal as well as a heaping measure of value. That, since the war, it has been impossible to buy a player-piano of like quality at as low a price as $365.

Just a small initial payment and a few dollars a week will put a Gulbransen in your home.

BE SURE

of perfect results on bake-day. Don't spend your time in preparing bakings that contain expensive ingredients and be disappointed when you take them out of the oven. Use not because it's the biggest selling brand on earth, but because it is absolutely the most dependable and economical of all leaveners.

When you employ Calumet Baking Powder you know that your bakings will raise properly because it contains more than the ordinary leavening strength.

Don't waste energy and money on uncertain baking powder — use Calumet, the "pure and sure" brand.

A pound can of Calumet contains full 16 oz. Some baking powders come in 12 oz. cans instead of 16 oz. cans. Be sure you get a pound when you want it.

WOMEN PASSING THROUGH AN AGE OF UNDERSTANDING

Men are Beginning to Learn That Women Have Brains to Do Their Own Work

BY MARIAN HALE

The restless sex and the restless age have offered a fertile field for fictionists.

But Mrs. Mary Hamilton, New York's first policewoman, whose sympathetic understanding of women in cludes not only the normal and super women but the most degraded criminals as well believes restlessness and social chaos are only symptoms of our mental development.

"We cannot judge women of this age by any known standards because they are a rule unto themselves," she says.

"We are now passing through a time not unlike the Renaissance.

"In Bible days woman was a temptress. She had rating on a par with the serpent. Men recognized only her physical side.

"Then came the Renaissance. The western world discovered woman had a soul and idealized her as a Madonna and a saint.

The year 1922 finds men awakening to the fact that women have brains. This brings her up to a level with men. She has become a human being with a mind, a soul and a body. She is now ready to achieve and work side by side with men.

"For the first time in history you find women trying to get what they want by using their brains instead of their sex.

"You see them demanding a right to make laws as well as abide by them.

"You find them ready to share responsibilities as well as privileges.

"And of course you see some of them exerting their newly found power in a destructive way.

"It is perfectly natural that the crime wave is involving women. But I refuse to believe crime among women is increasing as much as reports say.

"The trouble is that we are treating as criminals many women who are sick men who are only young foolish things not developed under the proper surroundings.

"The neurotic woman, who resorts to drugs, may become a law breaker—but because she is a sick woman.

"The girl who runs away from home is a law breaker. But instead of shutting her up in a cell with hardened criminals, she should be handled by a sympathetic woman who will protect and mother her until she gets better perspective.

"To decrease crime among women we need first of all new laws founded on an understanding of women laws which women have helped to make.

"And we all need to Have a Heart."

Youths Find Best Friend In Constable

Little Rock, Ark.—As deputy in charge of boy supervision under Constable Mike Haynie, Mrs. Julia D. Roberts is among Pulaski counties best known and most popular officials.

"Incorrigible boys," she says, "are the ones she is supposed to have jurisdiction over. She refuses to admit however that any of 'her boys' are bad. If one does occasionally need a little reforming, Mrs. Roberts' idea of accomplishing this is by MRS. ROBERTS' washing and feeding and clothing and if necessary, sheltering him. The boys know this. When one of them finds himself in trouble he turns at once, for a friend, to Constable Roberts.

"The 'constable' never needs to show her shiny star, as an evidence of authority, to a boy. Sometimes she finds it useful in negotiating with refractory parents. But she says she has no 'difficult cases.'"

Mrs. Roberts has brought up two children of her own. Now she is a grandmother.

LEARN A WORD EVERY DAY

Today's word is MANDATE. Its pronounced—man-date with accent on the first syllable.

It means—an authoritative command, has been used recently to designate an authorization by the League of Nations to some Power to direct affairs in a country or district considered incompetent to govern itself.

It comes from—Latin "mandare," to commit to one's charge, being a combination of the two Latin words "manus" hand, and "dare" to give.

It's used like this—"The French deny sentencing Charles R. Crane, an American, to prison for criticizing the way they are exercising their mandate in Syria, but it is evident they are annoyed."

OUR FIRST YEAR

Chapter 53—Important Purchase

By a Dried

In preparation for the motor trip I invested in a darling new electric sewing machine. It wasn't so very expensive because I only had to pay a small sum down and $5 a month. For the first payment I gave my check.

Jack agreed that I needed a sewing machine. All economical wives had sewing machines. And he was sorry that I had to use my allowance for the down payment.

Jack so often is worried nowadays when we discuss our finances that I have learned to make our conversation about money is short as possible.

I set out to make my dresses this summer because Mary Smith says she can make two for the price of one ready made. I never learned to sew very well my mother hadn't time to teach me. But today's patterns are straight there's not much fit to them they're easy to put together. Mary says and so I decided to try.

I bought some of the loveliest blue dotted swiss fine imported material, that I never could find in a ready made, and a French organdy, crisp and dainty. One was $2.50 a yard, the other $3. I had them charged.

The paper patterns looked easy to follow, and perhaps if I had had time to be industrious I could have finished one of the dresses. But I was interrupted daily by certain people of impudence.

I've discovered that people of leisure who don't want to do things themselves are quite ingenious about getting me to do things for them.

Mrs. Dalemater was continually asking me to attend to her orphan proteges and Mrs. Arnold thinks she is doing me a great favor when she asks me to give a week's time to her tomahawk department of the children's summer camp. Certainly it's meantime I was properly thankful. He said he'd hold something I wasn't clear what, until Jack fixed my account.

Chops And Oranges

Do you ever try mixing lamb chops and oranges?

That's another of those delicious combinations of meat and fruit in which each brings out to the full the flavor of the other.

Just try this recipe: Dip each chop in melted butter. Place on a well oiled broiler. Broil eight minutes.

Turn and place a slice of orange on each chop. Broil eight minutes longer. The fat should be trimmed from chops. Sprinkle with salt and paprika and serve very hot with a garnish of sliced oranges.

Lamb chops can be pan broiled quite as well as broiled over the flame. Trim fat from chops and dip in melted butter. Place in a hussing hot frying pan and put a slice of orange on each chop.

Turn frequently, keeping the orange always on top of the chop. Allow 20 minutes for broiling the meat. (Copyright 1922 NEA Service)

Household Hints

NO TRIMMING

Some of the newest gowns for evening and for dinner wear are absolutely untrimmed save for a belt of beads or flowers. Frequently these come in vivid shades of American beauty green or pure white, but more often in black.

JADE COMBS

High combs of carved green jade and in less expensive substitutes are now being shown. They take the high Spanish comb as their model both in size and in carving but they have a color note that is quite distinctive.

FOR SUMMER

Turbans of maline a shade of brown being particularly fashionable are replacing those of satin and straw cloth that have been so popular. Though there is much talk of the large hat on the street the close turban is more than holding its own.

GINGHAM

Gingham dresses are amazingly cheap this year compared to the prices they attained the past few seasons. For less than $10 you may get a very snappy one.

ROW OF ROSES

A summer cape of black crepe does not miss a fur collar for as a substitute it has a row of roses developed in tulle. This makes a soft ornamental finish for a garment that will stand much hard wear.

FOR SPORTS

Silk broadcloth is considered highly desirable for tailored blouses and skirts for sport wear. It comes in plain or figured patterns.

PERMANENT WAVE

There is a new system of permanent waving just introduced which is said to have no injurious effects on the hair. Oil is added during the process so the result is silken fluffy hair in stead of dry and sometimes frizzly locks.

TERRY CLOTH

Bathing capes of terry cloth are both practical and decorative. The material comes in large figured patterns as are used in cretonne. It also comes in plain colors.

FOR BATHING

Many of the newest bathing capes take into consideration the problem of the tanned neck, and the dancing frock so they are made with frills of rubber which extend to the shoulder line and offer an excellent protection against the rays of the sun.

IF YOU ARE WELL BRED

You will devote more time to your appearance before you leave home and not so much in public. You will refrain from attempting to your fingernails and your hair and from making up in the presence of others.

You will keep yourself well groomed at all times that you may have the assurance and poise that comes from a pleasing appearance.

Buy Prize Winners

L. F. Bushey has purchased from Florio Fuchs, Tomahawk secretary of the Wisconsin Poultry association the entire pen of Buff Lehighs that won first place at the national poultry show at Chicago last December. He also has acquired a cockerel that won fifth place at the same show.

One morning Frank Brown, a friend of Jack's and a teller in the bank called me up.

"You're overdrawn Mrs. Madison," he said. "I thought you'd like to know about it."

Of course I was properly thankful. He said he'd hold something I wasn't clear what, until Jack fixed my account.

This Laundress Has Hands Like a Queen

By GRACE BARTON

Would you believe that I envy my laundress, her soft girlish hands? "Martha," I finally asked her, "how on earth do you keep them that way?"

This is what she told me— "Once my hands were red, rough and dry, due to white and yellow laundry soaps. The skin cracked and burned for hours after washing. I sought relief in lotions, but the next time I washed my clothes the redness and roughness would return."

One night I read an article that told how a chemist found something called filler in all the laundry soaps he examined—nearly thirty—except one. He said that filler had no cleaning power but was only used to fill up the soap because it was cheap and soap fats were more expensive.

"But," he said, "these 'fillers' cut the clothes and rotted them, so I decided if they did this to materials that must be what made my hands so red and rough."

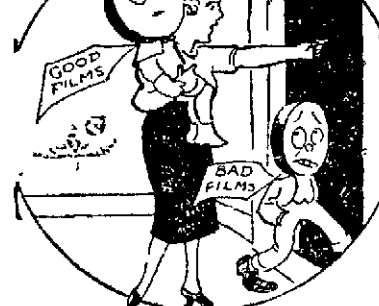

"The one soap he said that had no 'filler' in it was a large bar called GREEN ARROW that was greenish in color like castle, because it contained real olive oil."

"Well I indulged the next woman I washed for to get some from her grocery."

The very first washing left my hands soft and not the least rough or red. But it took several washings before I realized I was using too much soap, because GREEN ARROW being a real soap, is all cleaning power and goes much further than the soap I had been accustomed to.

"I have never seen anything like this combination of olive oil and naphtha in the GREEN ARROW Soap—the way it cuts the grease and fairly makes the dirt drop out of the clothes after a little soaking. I scarcely ever have to rub anything, except perhaps the seat of Teddy's rompers of Mr. Barton's shirt bands and collar bands, and never any hard, destructive rubbing even so."

CENSOR FILMS

"Clean pictures by clean people is the slogan of the women of Sacramento to CIL who have organized to elevate motion picture taste."

Their method is simply to advertise and boost pictures meeting the approval of their pre-viewing committee. Oil is added during the process so the result is silken fluffy hair in stead of dry and sometimes frizzly locks.

The plan has worked admirably here. Mrs. Charles Gilmore, president of the organization declares, "I believe it would be equally effective in other cities."

Adventures Of The Twins

In Brownland

Mr. Pim Pim and Kip listened to the Twin's story and how they had lost their way on the Glass Mountain.

"It's clear to be seen," said Pim Pim finally, "that you'll need our help, my young friends, for you have passed over the two easiest mountains of the lot. The five ahead grow harder in turn until you come to the last. And you'll be lucky indeed if you can get past it."

"Where are the other mountains?" asked Nancy anxiously.

"Well," said Mr. Pim Pim, "they are the Electric Mountain, the Elder-down Mountain, the Chocolate Mountain, the Five and Ten Cent Store Mountain, and the Mountain That Isn't There."

"Well just wait and see," said Kip wagging his head. "It's too bad you didn't get some of the rubber off Rubber Mountain to tie onto the soles of your shoes."

"Why?"

"Because you can't step on the Electric Mountain without getting shocked. And every time you get a shock you fall down and roll off. The result is, you never get over it," answered Mr. Pim Pim. "Unless you have rubber or glass to walk on."

"Oh," said Nancy suddenly, thinking of something. "If we only had our goloshes 'Nick'! We left them in the Sorcerer's Cave."

"Goloshes!" In the Sorcerer's Cave? cried Kip. "Oh then, here's where I come in. It won't take me long, with a couple of dozen Browne helpers, to dig an underground tunnel right to the place and get them for you. You see I used to be mischievous and did so much harm that I'm spending the rest of my life doing good deeds."

"The shovel is in the Enchanted Cupboard," said Mr. Pim Pim. "Here's the key."

Off started Kip to gather Browne's to help him dig a tunnel and get the much needed goloshes.

Watch for the White Bag Men!

They Will Call At Your Home

---and at every electrically lighted house in the city

Their message will be one of service-- their advice will bespeak of economy-- and your knowledge of electricity and its terms will be increased many fold.

THE use of electricity in the home for convenience, and economy is no longer considered a theory nor an experiment, but it is a reality, a necessity. Its prowess as a modern labor saver to the housewife is acknowledged by all. Its thoroughness is granted, its cleanliness is admired, its convenience is the least of its attributes and its economy the greatest.

But in accepting it for a practical servant about the house it should be the duty of every householder to know more of its CHARACTER and EFFICIENCY rather than merely take it for granted.

To bring home our point clearly we will make an example to fit our purpose. Mrs. A. advertises for a maid somewhat in this manner—

WANTED--Competent maid for general housework.
References required. Apply Mrs. A., 1019 Burke St.

The next day Mary R. applies and is employed at the wage she asked, 40c per hour. In employing her Mrs. A. is in a position to know how much work to expect of Mary R. in an hour's time and as a consequence knows whether she is getting full value for the money paid.

Now on the other hand, what if this same maid came to her and said--"I'll work for 20 cents a 'Dumpty tee Da'?" Even though the maid had all the references required would it be practical for Mrs. A. to employ her without first ascertaining just what the maid's conception of a "Dumpty tee Da" was, and how much work she could do in a "Dumpty tee Da." It doesn't sound reasonable, does it? Supposing Mrs. A. hired her---would she know if she were getting full value for her money, would it be a practical way to employ a maid, would she know if she were getting full efficiency and yet, isn't that just what is happening in the home today with electricity?

"Miss Electricity"---acknowledged by all to be the modern servant of the home---will work for you on the sliding rate of 10c, 7c and 3c a "kilowatt." Isn't it just about as clear to you as the maid who would work for twenty cents a "Dumpty tee Da"--- But wait---"Let the---White Bag Men explain---"

In introducing the White Bag Men to the public, we believe we will be accomplishing a real service to the people of Appleton and vicinity. We know that our customers, at least will profit by the advice and recommendations given by the White Bag Men and that the benefits derived from the educational campaign carried on to the housewife and home by these men will result in a more thorough knowledge of electricity and its use in the home.

BRANDT GIVES RELEASES TO SCHULTZ AND HERZOG

SWAT FEST OF LAST SUNDAY CAUSES SHIFT

Brandt Trying Hard to Live Up New Talent for His Valley League Club

Hank Schultz, the elongated moist ball hurler from Milwaukee, has hurled his last game for Brandt's Ford. Big Hank, long the power plant of the Brandt machine, has been hitting on only two and three cylinders this year and on Monday Magistrate August decided that a new part was needed. At the same time he discarded his steering gear, Manager Jack Herzog, late of the Lake Shore league, and probably soon will announce a new leader.

Schultz's release was expected after the hammering he got Sunday. He hasn't been going too good in any of the games thus far and it was believed a change should be made. Hank, it is said, is not nearly as good a pitcher as he was in the past and in addition to this tendency to slip is the fact that the league is faster than ever before.

Owner Brandt has not definitely determined on his new hurler nor on his new manager, it was said. He expects to be pretty well fixed, however, before the team goes to Menasha next Sunday.

Bergerino, the swarthy faced chap who covered second base last Sunday, has affixed his name to a contract and will be in the Brandt lineup. Braby has been shifted from shortstop to third base, his regular position. Much is expected of Bergerino who is a former professional ball player. He is quite handy with the stick and knows how to field his position.

Brandt is hopeful that he will get his team in shape to win a few games before long. He isn't making any promises except that he will do the best he can to give local fans a winning club.

INTERLAKES MEET HORTONVILLE TEAM HERE NEXT SUNDAY

Appleton Fans Will Have Chance to See Good Game at Interlake Park

Appleton baseball bugs will get a chance to satisfy their craving for good ball when the Interlake team of the Outagamie County league goes into action against the strong aggregation from Hortonville at Interlake park next Sunday. Gregory's Pulp Heavers lost last Sunday's game to Dale and will no doubt be out with blood in their eyes after the Hortonville scalp in an effort to get into the first section of the league standings. Manager Gregory has announced no changes in his lineup so he will likely put the same team that played at Dale on the diamond Sunday. The County league teams have been putting up a fine brand of ball and deserve the hearty support of the fans which they have been getting.

The strong undefeated Kimberly outfit will journey to Black Creek for its Sunday outing and is booked to win that game although the down river nine will have to fight as the Black Creekers swamped Hortonville last Sunday. The Creek team showed itself to be a hard hitting bunch with sixteen wallpops off Hortonville.

The Freedom nine, which was defeated in the game with the leaders, will endeavor to redeem itself at Dale.

NATIONAL TRACK MEET IN CHICAGO

Chicago — Entries from college track aggregations over the entire country, including the winners of 15 state and conference meets had been received Tuesday by Major J. L. Griffith of the University of Illinois for the national intercollegiate championship track meet to be held at the University of Chicago field June 17. A total of more than 100 teams is expected to enter the meet which is the second annual event to be staged by the National Collegiate athletic association. The meeting this year will be representative of the country and the winner will be regarded as the national champion.

California, winner of the eastern intercollegiate meet and winner of the Pacific Coast title; Washington U. winner of the Pacific Northwest conference title holder; Georgia Tech, champions of the Southern conference; Texas A. and M. winner of the Southwest conference, and Nebraska, Missouri Valley champions, will all be strong contenders.

$150,000 FOR CARP IF HE FIGHTS GREB

New York — Alarmed at the absence of a response to his previous cablegram, Tex Rickard has dispatched another cable to Georges Carpentier in Europe, offering the world's light heavyweight champion the sum of $150,000 to come to this country and defend his title against Harry Greb, Pittsburgh boxer who recently won the American light heavyweight title from Gene Tunney. The latest message is a renewal of the offer Rickard submitted by cable to Carpentier a fortnight ago, immediately following Greb's triumph over Tunney.

PECKINPAUGH HAS PLENTY OF TROUBLE

Washington Shortstop Blames Too Much Press Agenting for His Difficulties

Washington—Roger Peckinpaugh, star shortstop of the Washington team has been having the worst spring of his career.

Peckinpaugh himself finds it impossible of explanation.

Often some recruit is spoiled by too much publicity. The case of Peckinpaugh may be one of those unusual ones in baseball where a veteran is the victim of too much press agenting. Peckinpaugh is rather inclined to that line of reasoning. In discussing his case he says:

"When I was secured by the Washington club many of the experts were kind enough to say that my addition to the team practically assured the pennant."

BOOSTED TOO MUCH
"That line of gossip was much published in Washington. It was said that with me at short Washington had the best infield in the American league, if not both leagues."

"Such kind words were all very lovely, but it seems there has been a reaction. The fans, having been fed on the pennant-winning talk, failed to take very kindly to the tail-end stuff that our club began pulling with the opening of the season."

"This Freedom nine, which was advertised as the one individual who made certain the pennant for Washington the fans naturally started to pick me to pieces. My failure to get away to a good start has given them many opportunities to use me as a target for their jibes."

BECAME THE GOAT
"One player seldom makes any ball club. It was rather unfortunate for me that I was advertised as the man Washington needed to make certain a pennant in 1922. Our failure to show has made me the goat."

"No ball club can win without consistent pitching. Thus far we haven't had that brand. Once our pitchers hit their stride we are going to make all kinds of trouble."

Chicago — Babe Ruth and the New York Yankees are scheduled to start the invasion of the western clubs in Chicago Tuesday against the White Sox.

Chicago — Harry Hooper, outfielder of the White Sox, out of the lineup for several days probably will get back in the harness Tuesday.

WINDSOR WANTS DEMPSEY-WILLS GO

Representatives From Canadian City in New York to Arrange Title Scrap

New York—With a prospectus full of good things, representatives are here from Windsor, Can., seeking the Jack Dempsey-Harry Willis heavyweight championship fight.

It is not a "sugar king" from Cuba stunt or a steamup for the fight. Windsor simply wants it if Tex Rickard wants to put on the bout.

The Windsor delegation claims to have more advantages than Montreal and that it does not need a national holiday to get the crowd. Rickard wants to stage the heavy-weight battle in Montreal on July 1 but Dempsey said he couldn't get ready by that time.

Dempsey is showing no great desire to meet the big colored fighter. Jack Kearns says he ought to get $500,000 to defend his title, and more words like that leaves every promoter out of the running with the exception of Rickard.

The champ is beginning to pan around New York. However, Dempsey was right in declaring that he needed more time to get ready than would result from a July 4 date as previously suggested for such a bout.

"PAIS" SIGN BIG LEAGUE PITCHER

Mound Artist Comes to Menasha With Good Record at St. Louis and Omaha

Manager Harry Sylvester of the Menasha ball team has signed Schatzman, a stellar pitcher, who goes to the "Pais" with a fine record from the big leagues. He pitched for the St. Louis Browns for two years and was with the Omaha team of the Western league for three years. While in the Western league he was considered one of the best pitchers, winning eighteen and losing twelve games for a club that finished in sixth place. The faith that he won so many games for a club that finished in the second division is considered a very good recommendation. Schatzman is a chorprator and will open an office in Menasha.

Ruth Sees Silver Lining To Cloud Of Suspension

Ruth Sees Silver Lining—8 Bambino Says He is Glad Williams and Hornsby Are Giving Him Competition

Babe Ruth isn't a bit selfish or jealous of the honors which were conferred on Ken Williams while the bambino was out of the game.

Following his return, Babe poled out his first home run in his third game of the year. Hitting against Elam Van Gilder of the St. Louis Browns he smashed a fast ball into the right field stands at the Polo Grounds. That swat marked his 1922 debut as a circuit hitter—his initial effort to overcome the lead of 11 home runs which, at that time, Ken had in advance of him.

Asked what he thought about Williams, who, just then, was still ahead, Babe replied:

"That guy is a great hitter. He certainly takes a mean cut at the ball. He has quite a start on me, but I'll get him before October."

FINE FOR BASEBALL
"It's a fine thing for baseball to have someone take my place in such good style. Williams' work has been a big thing for the American League. It has kept the home-run laurels in our league during my absence."

"Then the work of Williams, as well as a number of other major league players has given me some thing to shoot at—offered some keen competition."

"I am sure the public is and will be greatly interested in my effort to take the lead again in the matter of home runs. Every day the fans will be following the box score to see what I did at bat, as well as the players I am trying to overtake."

"Such competition stirs up interest—makes the old game. Perhaps my suspension will work out for the best from every angle."

"Without any 'braggo' I feel that had I been in the game from the start of the season I would be out in front in the matter of home runs. As it is, I am trailing far in the rear, up against a stern battle in an effort to hold my crown as the home-run king."

SURE OF SUCCESS
"It's going to be a tough job, but gardless of all the bunk that has been written on the subject.

That doesn't mean that he isn't going to keep on trying. If trying means anything he will more than break last year's mark.

For some reason Babe says 44 home runs will lead the league this year, and he expects to make that many despite his late start.

CHAPTER I THE RADIO DANCE

"Ruth worries me," Mrs. Kenmore Walden drew Guv Garrick toward the quiet end of the Nonwauk Country Club.

Garrick did not need to affect interest, for Ruth Walden was far and away the most interesting problem of the Country Club set. Of late years Garrick had grown to be counselor and confidant in all the ills to which North Shore society was heir.

Mrs. Walden smiled abstractedly. She was one of those stunning women of today whom one confuses with the daughters.

"She says that I betray my inferiority complex when I say it—that what I really mean is not that Ruth worries me, but youth worries me—today I don't understand young people today. I may have understood young people in the days of the Florodora sextet—but I don't understand them now—and that's what really worries me."

"No one would believe you could have a daughter old enough to worry you, Nita," declared Garrick in unaffected admiration. "But tell me what it was you couldn't say over the telephone when you got me at last this morning."

"I suppose you've heard all about the first Radio Dance last night over at Bellevue Lodge," Garrick knew, the Gerard place, at Oldfield?"

Garrick nodded. "Well, you know how young Glenn Buckley got the Gerard's to put in a wireless outfit—had Professor Vario from the big Radio Central Station at Rock Lodge help him install it. At least that's what Glen said. The truth was, of course, that Professor Vario had to do all the work. Glen just messes around with it, has acquired the knack—but I guess that's about all."

Garrick smiled at the characterization and Mrs. Walden hurried on. "Then the young folks got up a dance to celebrate the installation. Lo and behold, they had scarcely started when that awful thunder shower—remember, last night—swept around, as they often do, from the Connecticut shore. That stopped the music over the wireless."

"Yes . . . static . . . Nature's jazz jazzed the radio jazz!"

"It was a spectacular storm, you know, with the lightning flashing and crashes of thunder. They were debating whether to use the Victrola and canned music or improvise an orchestra of the trees. At the height of the storm came a voice from the French windows: 'Hands up! . . . And be quick about it! . . . Line up along the wall! . . . And keep your mouths shut!'"

"There seemed to be three of them, masked, two men and a girl—a regular devil-may-care hussy. She held the bag and a gun and took the jewels while the two men covered the party. . . . They seemed to know just what they wanted, what to expect."

"What did they get?"

"Why, those bandits went through the party. They must have got away with a hundred thousand dollars' worth of jewelry . . . oh, more than that. The Walden pearls that they took from Ruth were worth twenty thousand easily."

"A good haul. But what's the gossip I hear that it was an inside job?"

Mrs. Walden glanced about to make sure that they were out of earshot. "That's what I want your help on, Guv. She dropped her voice. 'I think McKay can tell you better. At first hand, McKay is our chauffeur. She leaped over the rail of the veranda. 'John'—"

McKay, down the driveway with the car, touched his cap and sidled up the steps of the club veranda. "John, will you tell Mr. Garrick what you saw last night over at Gerard's?"

"Well, sir," began McKay, balancing accurately first on one foot, then on the other, as he poked at his visored cap, "after it was all over and there was a general alarm, sir, old Mr. Gerard came down to see what all the shooing was for and he asked me a lot of questions—about the general—and—"

Just how did you happen to be there, McKay asked Garrick. "I didn't know Miss Ruth would let any body drive her car."

McKay smiled. He had a touch of humor, even though his keen Irish wit saw the serious and suspicious side of the incident. "Oh, I had been out joy-riding, sir—I'm sorry to have to say it, ma'am—he bowed toward Mrs. Walden with Lotta, one of the maids at Oldfield."

It was evident that McKay was striving to show that he had nothing to conceal—and a lot to tell. Moreover, on the score that there had been a signal and the affair was an inside job, he seemed anxious to clear Lotta too.

light was just like artificial lighting, only you could see any part of the shore you wanted and the waves a-smashing over the rocks at any time you liked and as long as you liked. From where I was I seen that there was a fellow and a girl up in the tower—a fellow that looked, maybe like Glenn Buckley.

"The light traveled along the shore, up toward Crane's Neck. It was beautiful. Just as it touched the cove, I made out three figures. It seemed as if they started down the shore just as the light hit 'em. The light traveled on, then turned back over the country and whoever was flashing it swung it about as far as he could in an arc. Then it went out."

Five minutes later—just about the time it would have taken to come down the beach from the cove and climb the steps up the bluff, this robbery took place. Oh, it was a signal all right.

"Was the fellow in the tower Glenn Buckley, you think?"

"Looked like him, sir."

"Who was the girl?"

"I can't say, sir."

"That will do, John," motioned Mrs. Walden.

There was something in her tone that checked Garrick from insisting on the pursuit of the identity of the mystery girl.

McKay touched his hat and returned to his car quicker than he had left it.

Garrick turned keenly toward Mrs. Walden. "What does Ruth say? Who was up there? Was she in the tower?"

Mrs. Walden looked away and murmured, "Ruth refuses to say anything."

"Was it Glenn in the tower?"

Nita was getting more nervous by the second. "She won't say," she replied in a hoarse whisper.

"Him?" considered Garrick. "It comes down to whether it is another crime in the wave of crime that has been hitting country places this summer—or is it a job pulled off with the assistance of someone at the dance?"

Nita Walden shook off a restraint, as if it had been a wrap. She had come at last to the real point that had led her to seek Garrick's counsel and said:

"Hands up!" THERE WERE THREE OF THEM, TWO MEN AND A GIRL.

now stood trembling as if on a spring board over the water.

"The morning," she blurted out in desperation, "a messenger boy delivered a package to Ruth. In it were her jewels that had been taken from her—the Walden pearls."

"When?" Have any of the others been returned? Could it have been a hoax?"

"No," Nita sank back in a wicker chair, her splendid shoulders convulsed as she sank her head into a little filmy lace handkerchief and sobbed. "I am frantic about Ruth's silence. Is silence confession? . . . Better to lose the jewels a hundred times . . . than to have them returned under such circumstances."

Garrick was thinking about Ruth Walden, the pretty flapper subduer. He said something soothing, reassuring.

"I didn't think Ruth was much more than a child," waited Nita, straightening up and dabbing at her eyes with the handkerchief. "But she has been coming to all sorts of dances."

"What sort of dances?"

"The cabarets on the city—and road-houses out here on the island."

Garrick involuntarily elevated his eyebrows.

"Oh, it's not a question of morals—alone," she hastened. "After all, sometimes common sense and foolishness are fair equivalents for right and wrong."

Guy looked up quickly, genuinely surprised at this bit of worldly wisdom.

"When girls do stupid, dangerous things, trouble follows," she persisted. "If not at once, a bit later. I'm afraid this is a case of it. Besides . . . Ruth comes into the income from the ten-million trust fund of her father's estate next month when she is eighteen."

"Who are in this set?" asked Garrick, then in a tone of gentle raillery, "Who are these dancing men?"

"There's young Glenn Buckley. They call him the Demon Lover, you know. He's just a smart college kid with a pile of money and a smattering of information. He can take up cricket or radio or acting or relativity or banking—he knows them all. Another is that Jack Curtis, over at the Hotel. They call him 'Worcestershire'—he's the sauce to anything they arrange, makes it snappy. In my humble opinion, though, he's nothing more nor less than another cabaret product."

"I know him . . . what I call a 'ditto boy,' plunges in with a big splash and swims with the tide."

"Oh, why can't Ruth accept Dick Defoe?" implored Nita.

Richard Defoe was a friend of Garrick, graduate of a great engineering school, son of a famous engineer and already an inventor of no mean fame. Of late he had turned all his attention to a radio invention in which he seemed to have a strange aptitude. His work on wireless photo transmission, his perfection of a wireless dictagraph and wireless telegraph had won him wide recognition. Just now he was at work on a radio boat, a radio automobile and a radio airplane. The mere mention of Dick constituted an added reason why Garrick felt impelled to come to the assistance of Nita in distress.

ENGAGE FIVE NEW TEACHERS AT H. S.

Peabody Recital Hall to be Used by High School for Chorus Work

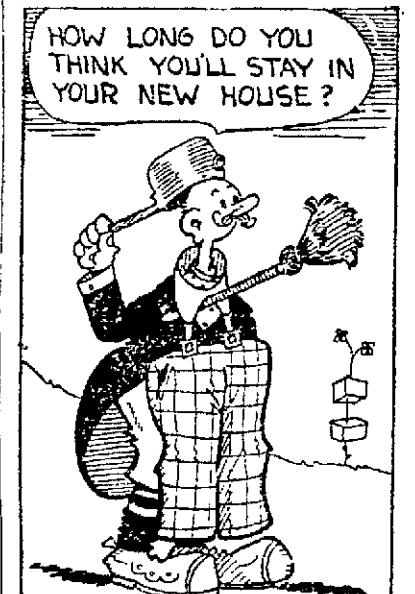

Earl L. Baker of Minneapolis, a new instructor at Lawrence Conservatory of Music, was engaged to take charge of the chorus and orchestra work at Appleton high school at the meeting of the board of education Monday afternoon. The recital hall at the conservatory of music will be used because of lack of room at the high school.

Guy Barlow, who had charge of manual training work in the Second district schools last year, was engaged as assistant physical director of the high school the coming year. A. F. Denny of Neenah will be director.

Miss Margorie Sweetman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George S. Sweetman, who taught in the high school at Waukegan, Ill. last year was engaged as instructor in English. Other new instructors engaged were Miss Doris Buchanan teacher of textile work, and Harry Clark, teacher of history.

Bills amounting to $765 were allowed. The monthly report of the trustee officer showed that 32 cases of nonattendance had been investigated. The next meeting of the board will be held Wednesday, June 28, at which time the annual school budget will be made out.

OILG DESCRIBES GREAT GROWTH OF FISHERS' LEAGUE

Noted Sportsman Says National Organization Needed to Save Fish

Describing the growth of Isaac Walton League of America at the meeting of the Outagamie County Fish and Game Protective association in Eagle hall Monday evening, William Oilg of Chicago, president and founder, said at least 1,000 chapters will be represented by delegates at the first annual convention. Some of the chapters, he predicted, would have a membership of more than 5,000. Among the cities in which chapters have recently been organized are New York, Pittsburgh, Columbus, Toledo, Indianapolis, St. Louis, Kansas City, Milwaukee, Stevens Point and Fond du Lac, he said.

The league was organized on Jan. 14, 1922. Mr. Oilg said on that date he invited a number of sportsmen in Chicago to a public luncheon to whom he disclosed his plan of a national organization the object of which was to save both fishing and hunting for present and future generations.

NEED NATIONAL CLUB
During the "rent" years he had been writing for the Outdoor Magazine he said he had received many letters from men of the country written on rod and gun club stationery. The writers said they had a rod and gun club, but that very few of the members were active. While he recognized the good work these clubs and state associations had done he decided there was only one thing to do to save the fish and game and that was to launch a national organization whose voice would be heard.

Dr. Preston Bradley, one of the other speakers of the evening, volunteered as a missionary, he said. An office was opened on March 4, and on March 14, less than 90 days ago the league got its first stationery. The league now has four chapters with a membership of more than 1,000 and twenty with a membership of more than 100. It is apparent the sportsmen of the country wholly welcome this movement, the speaker said.

NEWSPAPERS HELP
"Great newspapers of the country," said Mr. Oilg, "have helped us heartily. We are subscribers to two clipping bureaus. We get newspaper clippings from all over the country. We do not know where they get the information."

"The league will have an outdoor magazine. The money will be furnished by a New York man not engaged in fishing and hunting. The money is to be loaned and to be paid with interest when the magazine is established. I believe it will be the greatest outdoor publication ever printed."

In regard to the pollution of streams by commercial industries Mr. Oilg said that question would be taken up after the first convention. Four thousand eight hundred streams are polluted in Pennsylvania and in Virginia nearly all the streams are polluted, the speaker said.

"How are these conditions to be improved?" Mr. Oilg inquired. "I think we will have to make a fight in Virginia. We will have to send our orators there. We will have motion pictures to remind the people of the need of voting for candidates only who have announced previous to the election to vote for a desirable bill."

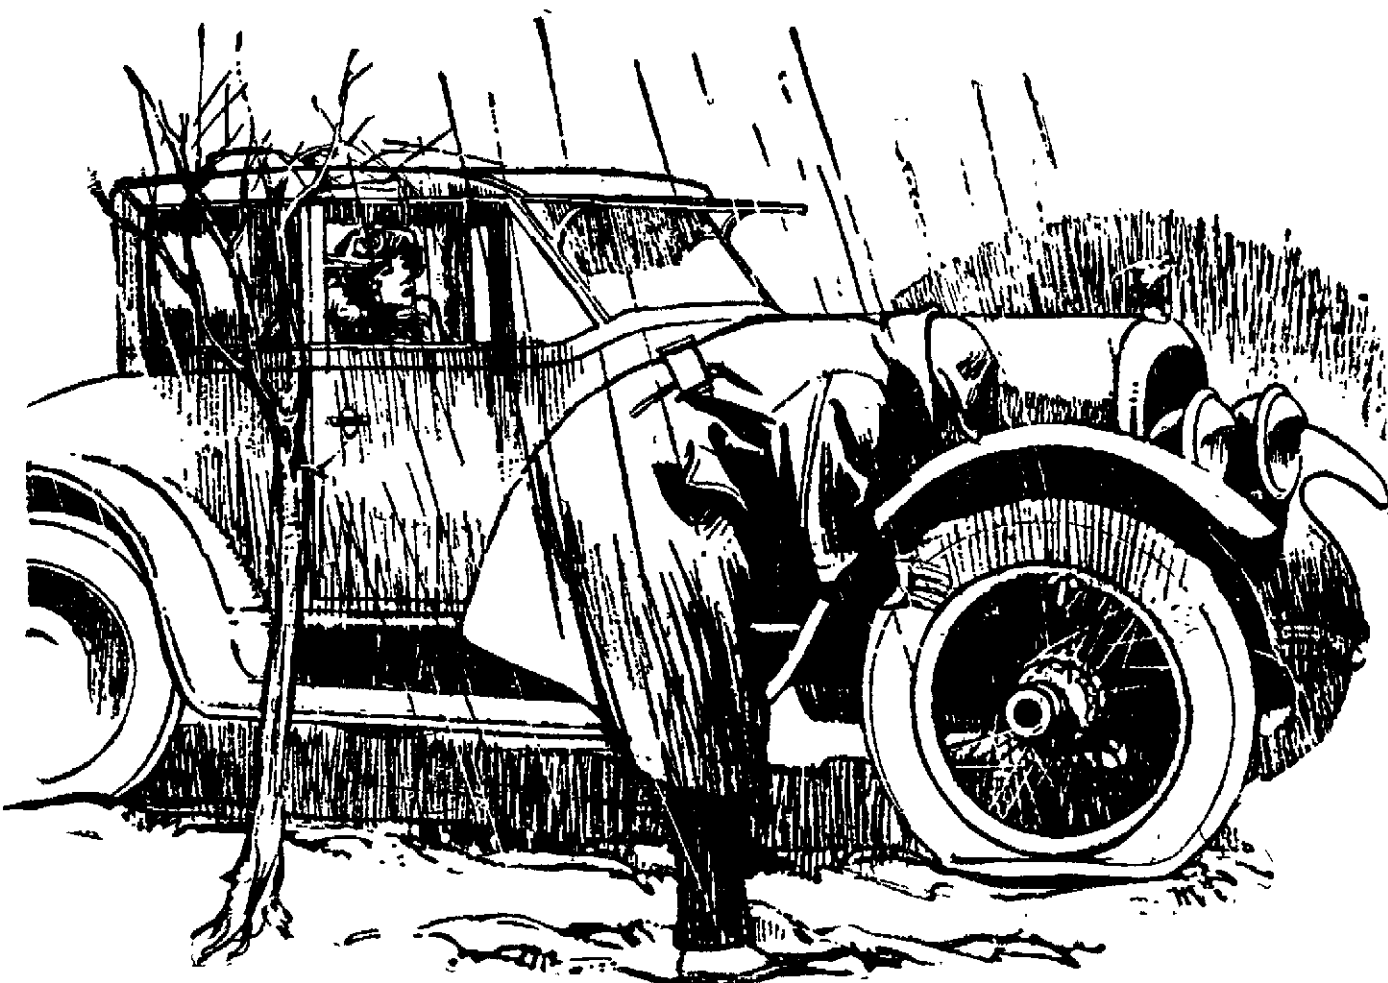

CHILDREN MAKE FINE RECORDS IN SAVING

What can be accomplished by encouraging thrift in the public schools is shown by the total saving by pupils in three districts in Appleton for a period of three months. Since the establishment of the savings bank system in the schools of these districts the sum of $1,888.64 was deposited. The week before school closed there were 636 deposits totaling $201.30, making an average deposit of nearly 32 cents a week.

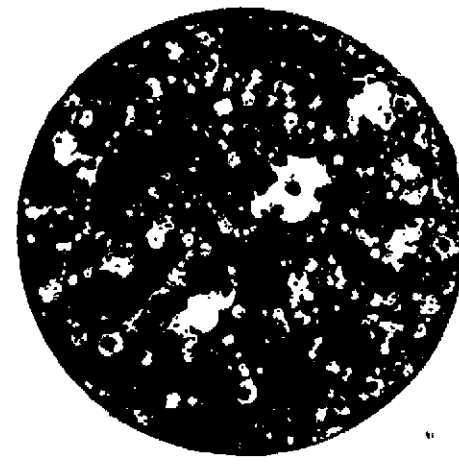

This, however, does not accurately represent the average number of depositors, for in previous weeks the deposits ran to nearly 1,000. The schools concerned are First ward, Lincoln, Columbus, Franklin, Fourth ward and Richmond. The high school and Third ward school have separate banking systems. During the vacation months pupils will make deposits directly at the banks, instead of in the schools.

TELL POSTOFFICE WHEN YOU CHANGE YOUR HOME

Appleton residents who are moving into new homes within the city are sometimes so engrossed in the cares of packing and moving that they forget to notify the postoffice of their change of address and consequently cause themselves needless worry as well as unnecessary work, worry and expense to the department, according to Postmaster Gustave Keller. Persons who contemplate moving should notify the carrier several days in advance, stating the day when the change in delivery is to take effect. This will obviate delay and possible loss of the mail delivered to the wrong address. The same care should be used by persons who move out of the city and wish their mail forwarded.

Drawings made from actual photographs of rubber magnified 200 times

Ordinary tire rubber

This is how ordinary rubber in tires looks when magnified 200 times. The white areas are "lumps" or clots formed by substances that have not mixed evenly with the rest of the "compound." Though they appear large under a magnifying glass, these "lumps" are so small that they cannot be seen with the naked eye. Yet every "lump" is a weak spot that reduces mileage.

Crolide Compound Rubber

Crolide Compound Rubber has no large "lumps." Although also magnified 200 times, notice how small the particles are in the above illustration—how finely divided and evenly dispersed they are. This even-texture Crolide Compound Rubber, is used exclusively by the Thermoid Rubber Company. It is what gives added wear to Thermoid Tires.

How unseen "lumps" in rubber reduce mileage

What the discovery of Crolide Compound Rubber means to motorists

If even-texture rubber—rubber without 'lumpy' formations—could be produced," said W. D. Pardoe, well known rubber expert, not long ago, "it is safe to say that tires could be made to give 15% more mileage."

What the prominent scientist meant by "lumpy" formations can be plainly seen in the round photo-micrographs above. The large white areas in the one photograph are unfused, unblended masses of "dead" material that weaken the rubber of ordinary tires.

All rubber for tires must of course have other substances worked into it to give it toughness and strength. But with ordinary compounds the mixing is not even and smooth. It results in "lumps"—every "lump" a weak spot in the tire.

Premature blow-outs, tread separation, and other tire troubles are largely due to this "lumpy" structure of the rubber. With the constant grind of driving—the scuffing of quick stops—the flexing and bending of the shoe—coarse-texture rubber rapidly weakens and crumbles away like an eraser.

A real step forward in tire-making

In working out the solution of this problem, two research chemists and two practical tire-builders in the Thermoid Rubber Company spent months in laboratory work and road-tests. They finally perfected Crolide—a rubber compound that reduces "lumpy" formations to a minimum—that eliminates premature tire troubles.

This even-texture rubber does not weaken with the stretching and straining that goes on inside a tire in use. Made with Crolide Compound, Thermoid Tires are protected against rapid wear—against unnecessary sand-boils, blisters and blow-outs.

Yet despite its greater strength and density, this new rubber is actually more resilient. A one-inch strip stretches to 7½ inches, almost eight times its original length.

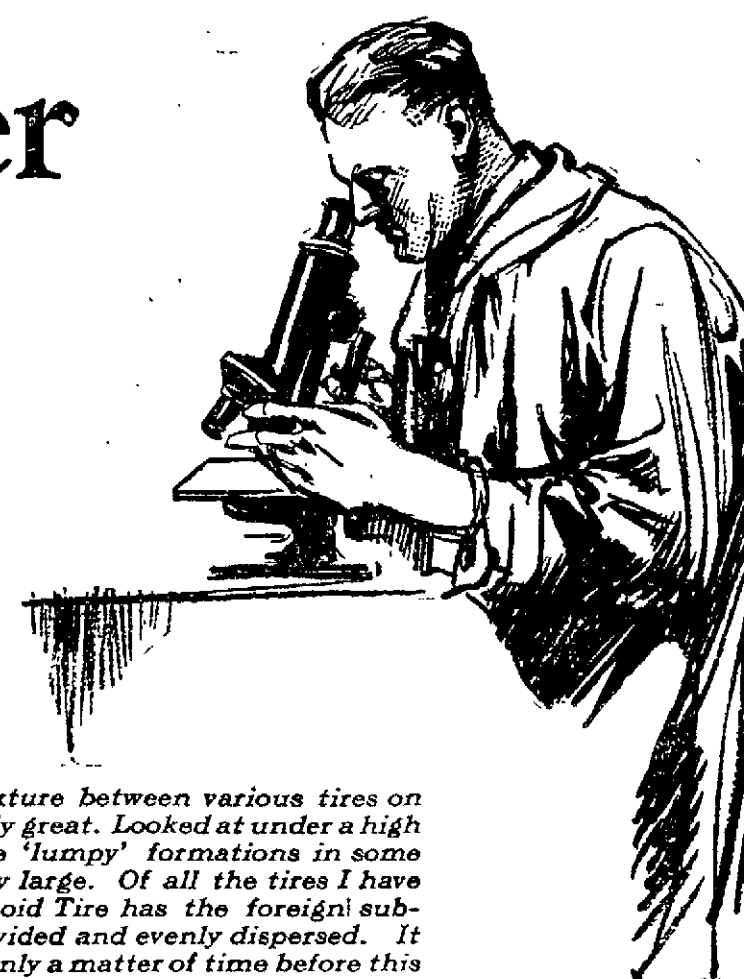

Why Thermoid Tires give extra wear

Crolide Compound is to-day used exclusively in the manufacture of Thermoid Tires. Either the Cord or Fabric type gives maximum mileage under all road and weather conditions.

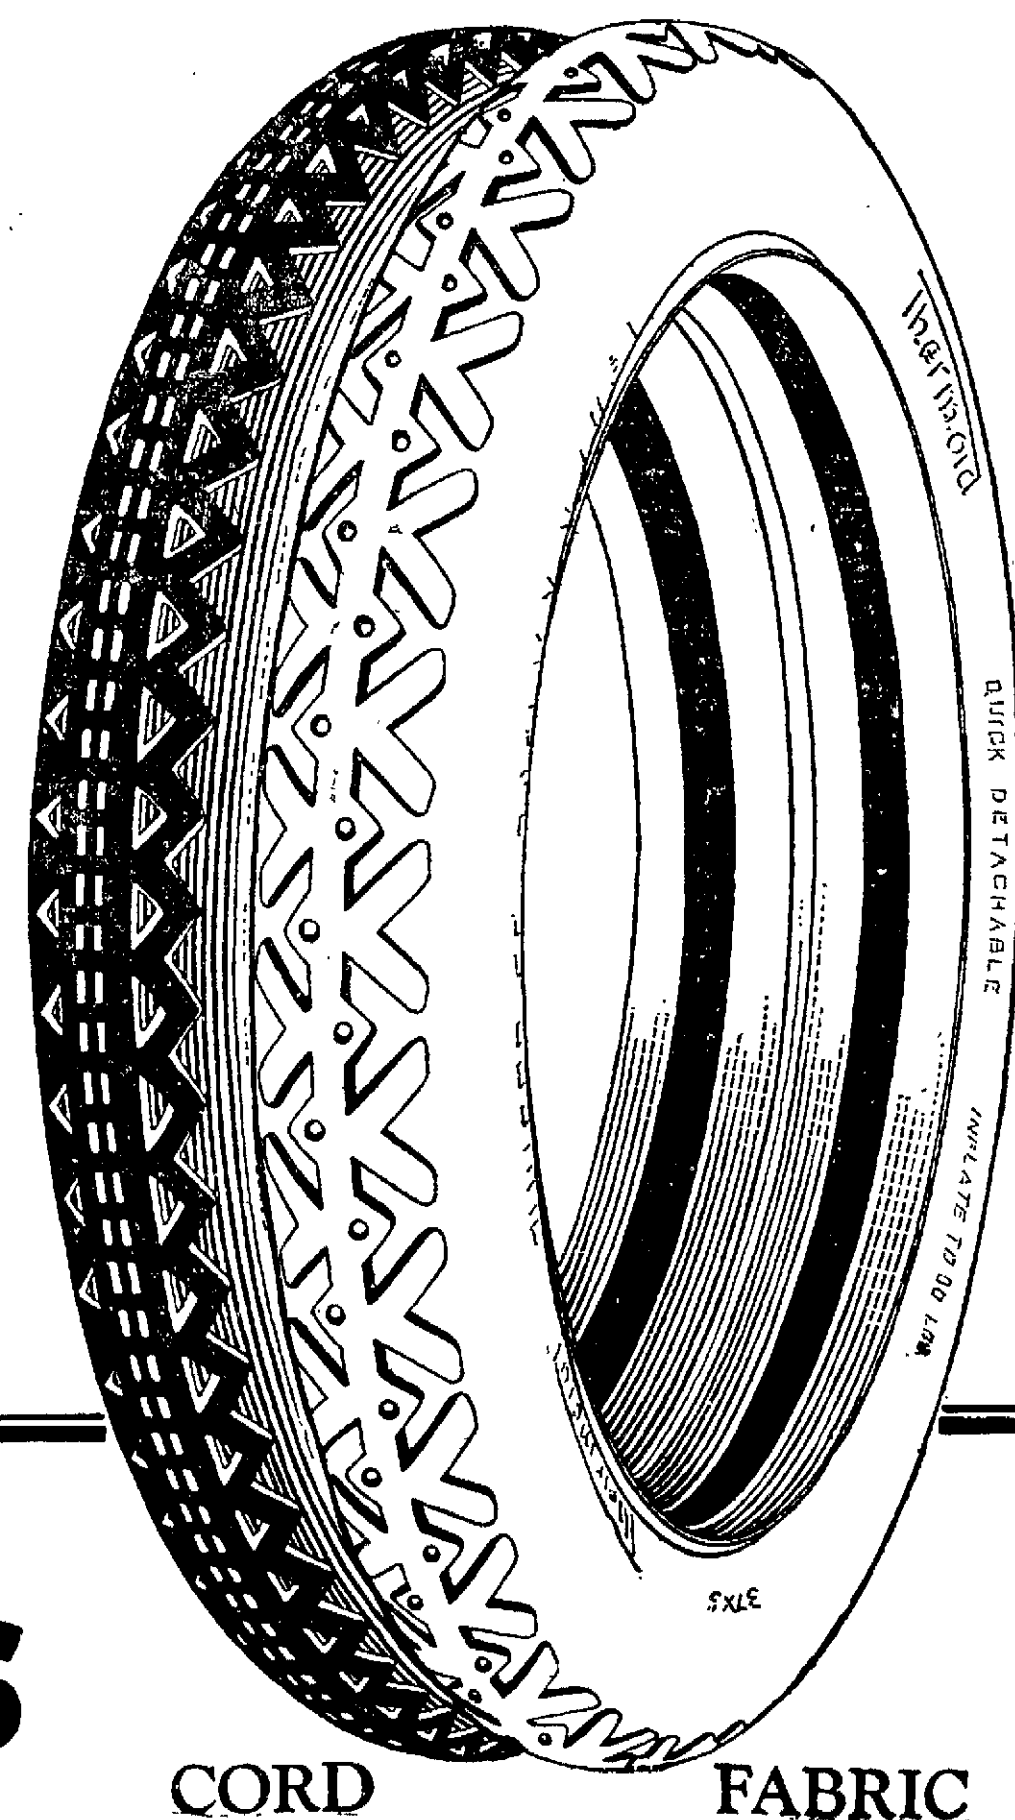

It can be fairly stated that a Thermoid Tire is equal to its oversize in any ordinary make.

We have compared the Thermoid Tire carefully, point by point, with other tires on the market to-day, and we confidently believe that no other tire compares with it for service and durability.

You are invited to call and see these new tires for yourself—also the famous Crolide Compound Tubes.

"The difference in texture between various tires on the market is extremely great. Looked at under a high power microscope, the 'lumpy' formations in some tires are comparatively large. Of all the tires I have examined, the Thermoid Tire has the foreign substances most finely divided and evenly dispersed. It is my belief that it is only a matter of time before this difference is widely recognized by motorists."—A. T. Beals, photo-micrographer.

NEED PUBLIC AID TO SAVE REMNANT OF FISH AND GAME

Emerson Hough Calls on Outagamie Sportsmen to Pioneer Conservation

"For forty years I have been writing in the interest of conservation, and I have failed," was the confession of Emerson Hough, author of "The Mississippi Bubble." The Covered Wagon At 54 Flight and noted writer for sportsmen and outdoor magazines, who spoke at the fish and game conservation meeting at Eagle hall Monday night.

"For years we wrote we preached we scolded we begged we threatened," he added, and yet we didn't accomplish anything. In spite of everything the game disappeared and the fish with it. The sporting press is impotent. There were 70 sporting papers at one time. The total circulation of all sporting magazines today is 250,000. And they are printing just what they printed 20 years ago. What is more the sporting press has become commercialized. In order to make the publications pay the publishers are influenced by the gun powder and sporting goods manufacturers."

NEED PUBLIC SENTIMENT

Other conservation agencies, such as forestry reserve, national parks, biological survey, and government bureau service have also failed in preserving the country's resources, he charged. No agency, he declared, could succeed without the aid of public sentiment.

"There is no organization or society in the United States that is trying unselfishly to help protect the fish and game," Mr. Hough asserted. "If there were, I wouldn't be here tonight. For years I was in the game and failed. I said to myself, 'I'm through saving this country. I'm going fishing.' And then I heard of the Isaac Walton League organized for the protection of fish and game, and I saw here a step in the right direction. If an organization like this can grow to a half million or more in strength, it will be able to call a halt upon the devastation caused by corrupt politics and commercialism."

LIKES WISCONSIN

Mr. Hough said that for 20 years he had been coming to Wisconsin to hunt and fish. It was the most wonderful sporting state in the union. While others prated about Maine and the Adirondacks, I laughed at them and said, "Come to Wisconsin and we'll show you something." I took out fishing licenses here every year. For the first time in 30 years I am not going fishing in your state this year. It is not because there is less fishing now. But somehow I lack the zest that once attended me while fishing in your wonderful state.

It is the fact that your trout and bass may soon become extinct, that makes me sad."

MUST BE UNSELFISH

To save the remnants of the nation's fish and game supply, Mr. Hough advocated an unselfish conservation magazine and an unselfish conservation organization. In conclusion he called upon his hearers to become pioneers in this movement in Outagamie county, adding what was once said of the old pioneers in the frontier days, "The cowards never started and the weak died on the way."

Mr. Hough stated that this was the busiest week of his life, but that he could not resist coming to Appleton to assist in the organization of a branch of the Isaac Walton League of America. He was further persuaded by Dr. J. A. Holmes, toastmaster, to come to Appleton again during the duck hunting season. The applause that followed this announcement was indicative of the reception that will be tendered him at that time.

INVITE PUBLIC TO PROGRAM FOR LEAGUE VISITORS

Group of Appleton's Best Known Artists to Appear in Chapel Thursday Evening

Delegates and visitors to the twenty-fourth annual convention of the League of Wisconsin Municipalities will be entertained Thursday evening in Lawrence Memorial chapel with one of the most unique programs ever attempted in this city. In order to give the visitors an idea of the splendid talent harbored by this city, arrangements were made for a program by Appleton artists of the very highest type. Not nearly all the artists in the city are included because the evening is not long enough to give them all a part, no matter how brief that part is.

Six hundred seats in the chapel will be reserved for the visitors and the remainder of the big building will be available for the public. No admission will be charged. City officials will act as ushers and will have charge of seating the immense audience that is expected. The program is to begin promptly at 8:15. Artists on this program are Frank Taber, Jr., organist; Carl J. Waterman, tenor; Mrs. J. T. Quinlan, soprano; Fullinwider String quartet; Mrs. Carl J. Waterman, soprano, Mr. and Mrs. Carl McKee, in a crayon sketch. The McKee quartet; Mrs. John P. Engel, reader; Miss Dorothy Adsit, dancer.

It is said that never before have so many well known artists of this city appeared on the same program. It is believed this will be one of the greatest entertainment features of the year and no doubt the chapel will be filled to capacity.

A concert on the streets by the Artillery band will precede the program in the chapel.

Mrs. Mary Dueke and daughter Carrie returned to Plainfield by automobile after spending the last few days with Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Schwab.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Snadden of Madison are visiting friends in this city. They are directors of Camp Osoba in Vilas County, a camp for girls, and are on their way there to spend the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Van Alstyne have just returned from Kalamazoo, Mich., where they attended a meeting of paper mill men.

R. A. Probst visited friends at Seymour Monday.

NAVAL VETERANS FORM SOCIETY TO GUARD MEMORIES

Former Sailors and Marines Complete Organization of Club Here

Perpetuation of the memories and comradeship of the naval and marine sections during the World war was accomplished following the meeting of Oney Johnston post of the American legion in Elk hall Monday evening when veterans of these branches of service organized what will be called the Naval and Marine Veterans association, with George C. Dame as its president.

The report of the organization committee was adopted, recommending formation of the association, the election of a president, vice president and secretary treasurer, and the holding of at least two social gatherings a year, one in the fall and one in the spring. Cooperation with J. T. Reeve Circle in the Memorial day exercises at the river also was suggested.

Charles A. Sparling was named vice president and E. L. Madison, secretary treasurer. The president was authorized to appoint an organization committee of six men who will obtain the names of all former sailors and marines and bring these men into the membership. Purposes and program of the association and the manner of conducting its affairs will be outlined this summer and submitted to a general meeting in the fall.

Nine former sailors and three former marines attended the organization conference and will be listed in the records as charter members. The navy veterans are Herbert M. Kahn, Bert Burmeister, C. A. Sparling, Henry F. Schwalbach, Louis Larsen, W. E. Strassburg, Walter E. Stimp, William Koehnke and E. L. Madison. The marines are H. L. Nabbefeld, Hubert A. Noelen, and H. C. Engfer of Neenah.
